

Canal issues spark Carter-Torrijos meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos met for more than 90 minutes today in an effort to reach a precise definition of U.S. defense and maritime rights in the disputed Panama Canal treaties.

White House officials promised a later statement on the meeting—the second between Carter and Torrijos in five weeks.

"The President and Gen. Torrijos had a very satisfactory meeting," said White House aide Hamilton Jordan.

Carter said Thursday he believes a clarification of permanent U.S. defense and maritime rights involving the canal "is crucial." But I don't think we need to modify" the treaties, which turn the canal over to Panama in the year 2000.

Under contention is the question of whether Panama will allow U.S. intervention in a canal crisis. The answer could be the difference between Senate ratification and rejection.

Carter and military strongman Torrijos, who also met here and signed the treaties in early September, posed for photographs at the start of their morning Oval Office meeting. They chatted in both Spanish and English shutting the door.

Torrijos arrived in Washington on his way home from a visit to Europe and the Middle East. The treaty provisions, under fire in Congress, have also been criticized in Panama.

Carter, who says the language in the accords is "adequate" and not in need of amendments, sought Thursday to explain the need for today's session.

"General Torrijos and I will be meeting... to make sure we have a common agreement on what the treaty means, and we may or may not issue some clarifying statement," Carter said. "But it is a constructive proposal because both of us want to be sure that our people don't live under any misapprehensions about the intentions or interpretation of the other country."

The President has been warned by Senate leaders the treaties will not be approved unless the right of the United States to defend the canal's neutrality beyond the end of the century is assured.

Conflicting statements concerning that right are at the nub of the controversy in both countries.

"I think the language of the treaty is adequate," Carter said Thursday. He noted he had met with Torrijos personally on the subject and added: "Both General Torrijos and I are faced with a difficult political problem; as he described it accurately, to sell the same product in two different markets."

"We are determined that the Canal will be open, neutral and free for use as long as it is there beyond the end of this century," he added.

"We do not have any inclination to intervene in the internal affairs of Panama," the internal affairs of Panama," he said, which is a point some segments of Torrijos constituency are upset about.

"When we say in this country we reserve the right to take action to keep the canal open, when they say in their country we do not intend to permit the United States to intervene in the internal affairs of Panama, we are both right," he said. "But the language didn't go into that much detail."

He said he wanted to make sure the people, when the U.S. Senate votes on ratification and when the Panamanian people vote in their Oct. 23 referendum on the treaty, "both will understand the terms of this treaty very clearly."

Drug traffic rumors rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The battle over the Panama Canal treaties is being waged on three fronts amid allegations Panama's leader may be involved in the international drug trade as a sideline.

Former secretaries of state Henry Kissinger and Dean Rusk today planned a second appearance on Capitol Hill to support the troubled agreements. The pair was to face the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to restate positions voiced earlier in the House International Relations Committee.

Conservative opponents of the agreements to cede control of the 51 mile waterway to Panama in 23 years supplemented efforts in Congress with another suit in federal court.

The attorneys general of four states and four conservative members of Congress, including Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, asked the Supreme Court Thursday to rule that Congress alone—not the President or secretary of state—has authority to dispose of U.S. property.

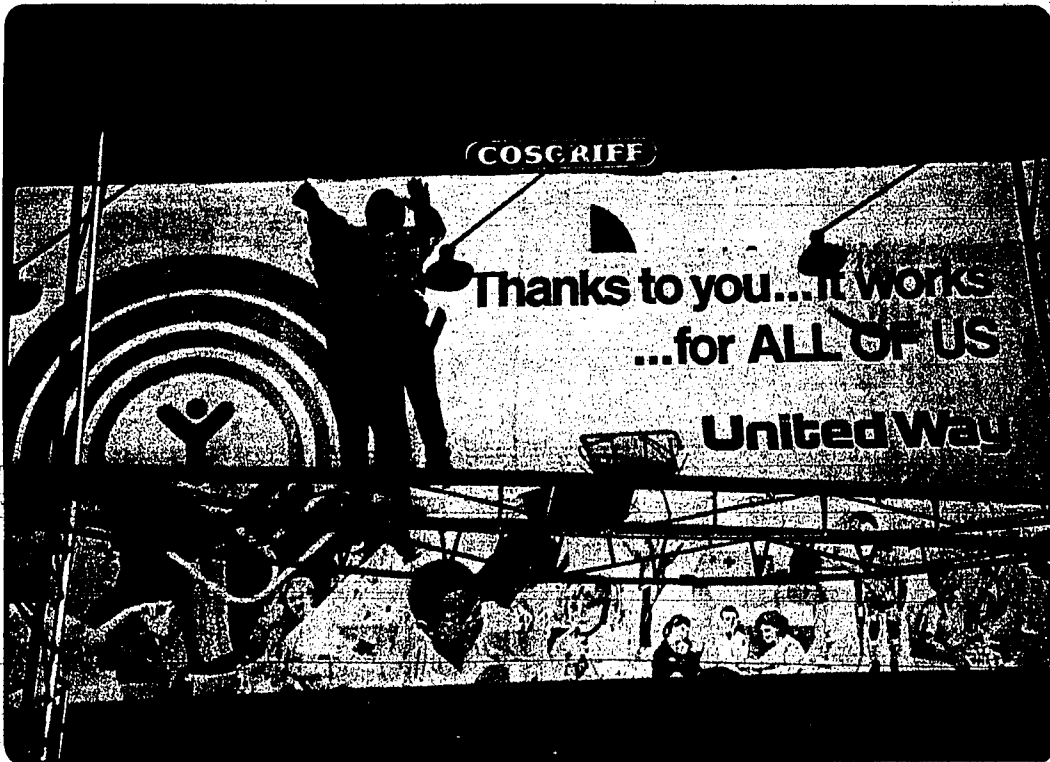

The high court already has squelched two previous challenges to the treaties, but the group's lawyer said the United States never has disposed of government property by treaty.

Carter told a news conference Thursday he would have a "difficult political problem" to win approval of the treaties.

On the eve of Carter's face-to-face chat with Torrijos, the Senate was in Congress over whether Torrijos was involved in the drug trade.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., suggested Thursday in a Senate speech Carter ask Torrijos about reports his family is engaged in drug trafficking.

"Suggestions that he—perhaps in conjunction with Fidel Castro—is involved in an illegal international drug operation is cause enough for concern," Dole added.

Indictment tags Hanna Korean agent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Calif. Rep. Richard Hanna was indicted today for bribery, mail fraud, conspiracy and failure to register as a foreign agent. A grand jury said he helped pay members of Congress to help South Korea.

Hanna was the first member of Congress—former or present—to be indicted in the burgeoning investigation of Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill.

Named as unindicted co-conspirators were three Koreans—Tongsun Park, Kim Hung Wook and Lee Hu Rak. Park was indicted in August on much the same charges as Hanna. Wook and Rak, both former Korean Central Intelligence Agency chiefs, were also named co-conspirators at that time.

The indictment, which had been expected, said Hanna helped Park distribute funds and select members of Congress to receive them. It said money was "distributed to United States congressmen and senators...and used for the purpose of influencing them" on military and economic matters vital to South Korea.

According to the indictment, Hanna, a Democrat, helped provide lawmakers with political contributions, cash for personal use, and money for office petty cash or slush funds.

In March, 1969, the indictment said, Pacific

Nations Investment Inc.—a corporation controlled by Park—purchased a new Cadillac for $4,499.95 and let Hanna use it free. Hanna sold the Cadillac in 1973 for $4,200, the grand jury said.

Hanna was named an unindicted co-conspirator in the Aug. 26 indictment of Park.

Park is currently in Korea and has resisted efforts by the House Ethics Committee to return to this country for questioning. President Carter said recently that even though the United States has no extradition treaty with Korea, the administration was pressuring Seoul to return Park.

Hanna, 63, served in the House from 1963-74, when he retired to enter private business. During his time in Congress he was considered one of Park's closest friends and was Park's partner in an export-import business. Hanna said that venture returned him $60,000 to $70,000 over three years.

The Park indictment charged Hanna received more than $100,000 from Park and that he shared in Park's commissions on sales of U.S. rice to Korea.

Hanna has lived in Fayetteville, Ark., for more than a year.

Vietnamese seize ship, 3 Americans

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Three Americans aboard a yacht apparently seized by Vietnamese gunboats in the South China Sea reported today in a radio message that they are safe, and are being towed to Saigon.

An amateur radio operator in Bangkok who monitored the transmission said it indicated the woman and two men were still aboard their 39-foot yacht Brillig.

"We are all O.K.," the message from the Brillig said.

"We are being towed to Saigon and should arrive there some time tomorrow," the radio operator quoted the crew as saying.

"Please tell our relatives in the United States that we are all O.K.," Cornelia Anne "Cricket" Dellenbaugh, 26, of Vero Beach, Fla., the owner of the yacht, apparently made the radio transmission. A second radio operator who monitored the conversation identified her voice.

"We are being escorted by three Vietnamese ships," she said.

The Brillig's crew had earlier reported they were being fired on, and their radio went off the air after a final message that said: "Our vessel is being rammed."

Officials had said they could have fallen into the hands of either Vietnamese or Cambodian naval forces or pirates operating in the South China Sea. The Brillig's automatic signal beacon was monitored earlier today in the vicinity of the yacht's last known position, leading to fears the vessel might be empty and

Bank misses $1 million

CHICAGO (UPI) — A locked steel cage and a thick steel door encased a locked money cart in a bank vault two stories below the city, but when the cart was checked, exactly $1 million was missing.

Officials of the First National Bank of Chicago Thursday reported a cool $1 million in cash—not a penny less nor a dime more—had disappeared from its main vault.

But the disappearance of the money from a vault constantly watched by four closed circuit television cameras and bank security personnel left the FBI baffled.

The money, apparently in several parcels, was taken from a four-by-seven-foot, dark green cart labeled F-2, First National Senior Vice President Homer J. Holland said. He said the loss apparently occurred during the Columbus Day weekend.

He said the vault was guarded the entire weekend and the time lock was activated during hours when there was no activity. There was no evidence of tampering with any of the locks or with the cart, Holland said.

The missing bills were in three denominations but Holland declined to say which denominations. He said the money could have been carried in a small suitcase. He also refused to say how the bank determined that exactly $1 million was missing.

The money was accounted for when the bank closed last Friday night. But on Tuesday night the chief teller was unable to balance his books at closing time, Holland said. After a few frantic hours, bank officials concluded money was missing.

Wednesday, auditors were summoned and "confirmed the assumption that we have a cash loss of $1 million," Holland said.

Coming Sunday

Sunday, the Times News will take a press box look at the World Series—an instant replay of Twin Falls' most rabid fans direct from the base-line seats at various bleachers (drinking establishments) around town.

The proposal to place a women's prison in Gooding is merely the latest in a long list of suggestions for use of the state's former tuberculosis hospital. Hijacked plane lands, gunmen list demands

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Hijackers threatened to blow up a West German jetliner with 11 persons aboard forced to land in the Arab emirate of Dubai today and demanded the release of 13 terrorists from West German and Turkish jails along with $15 million ransom.

A West German government spokesman said the hijackers also warned that kidnapped German industrialist Hans-Martin Schleyer would be shot unless 11 German terrorists held in Germany are released by 4 a.m. EDT Sunday.

The hijackers demanded the release of the 11 Germans plus two Palestinians held in Turkish jails. Spokesman Klaus Boelling told a news conference in Bonn.

"Boelling indicated the government would try to fulfill the hijackers' demands. 'We take the ultimatum very seriously,' he said. 'We will do everything humanly possible to save the lives of the women and children, of the passengers, of the air crew, of Schleyer.'

In Ankara the Turkish government rejected the hijackers' demands for the release of two Palestinians held in Turkish jails.

A spokesman for the Turkish Foreign Ministry said the hijacking in no way relates to Turkey, and for this reason it is impossible for the government to release the prisoners.

The two Palestinians, Husayn Muhammad El-resli and Mehdi Mohammed Zirheide — are serving life sentences for a bomb and gun attack on passengers of an El-Al airlines plane at Yessikoy international airport. Four persons were killed and scores wounded in the Aug. 12, 1976, attack.

A newsman in Abu Dhabi said one of the hijackers fired a shot while others were outside the plane pumping out the rear toilet reservoirs. However, no one was believed to have been injured, and it was not immediately clear why the shot was fired.

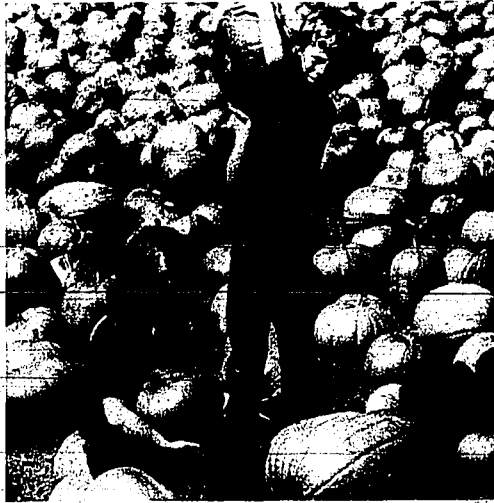

The hijackers also demanded insult to be brought aboard for a diabetic passenger.

The Dubai airport tower had asked the hijackers "in the name of Arabism and humanity" to let any of the hostages in need of medical attention off the plane. "We are extremely sorry," the tower was told. "No one will leave the plane until our conditions are met."

Boelling said the hijackers, who seized a Lufthansa airliner over southern France Thursday, disclosed in an ultimatum relayed to the Bonn government today that they are in league with the West German terrorists who kidnapped Schleyer, a top German industrialist, early last month.

In Paris, the newspaper France-Solr received a twin ultimatum by the West German Red Army Faction and an Arab guerrilla organization demanding the freeing of the jailed guerrillas and $15 million ransom for the release of the hijacked jetliner and Schleyer.

Tide of Congress unturned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's vigorous counter-attack on the energy front had little immediate effect on the way Congress was dealing with the issue.

The Senate Finance Committee went ahead Thursday with its plan to turn out an energy tax bill containing no taxes. The committee's strategy was to avoid — for the moment, at least — the Senate's opposition to energy consumption taxes and let the issue be worked out by a Senate-House conference committee.

Carter has urged new or increased taxes on oil and on gas guzzling automobiles.

The reaction among members of Congress to Carter's news conference statements was mixed. Some said the pressure will work, but others objected to the President's "inflammatory" remarks and said his energy program needs to be drastically revised by Congress.

In other action on Capitol Hill, the House and Senate temporarily solved a budget crisis and gave themselves a little more time to settle their differences on the issue of federal funding for abortions.

The two chambers agreed to a resolution that will continue the pay and programs of the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and some smaller agencies until the end of October.

'No change,' Israel vows

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel has released the text of a previously secret U.S.-Israeli agreement on resuming the Geneva peace talks, but American sources said Israel's interpretation of the document does not match theirs.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, after reading the document to the Knesset (parliament), Thursday, vowed Israel would not tolerate any fundamental changes in the document.

Earlier in the day, Syria's government-run newspaper rejected the "working paper," saying it represented "no change" in Israeli policies.

The agreement was drafted by President Carter, Dayan and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance last week in New York and was unanimously endorsed by the Israeli Cabinet

Tuesday. Washington later relayed the document to Arab leaders.

Dayan told the Knesset the document was "reasonable and good" and complied with two major Israeli demands: that the Palestine Liberation Organization not attend Geneva and that the creation of a Palestinian state on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Jordan not be discussed.

"In no way will anyone from the Palestine Liberation Organization be included," Dayan said. "Here there is full agreement. No member of the PLO will participate."

But U.S. officials in Washington said nothing in the agreement prevents low-ranking PLO members from taking part in Geneva or bars the delegates from discussing a Palestinian state.

Dayan said, "Here there is full agreement. No member of the PLO will participate."

Dollar vs. yen: U.S. hits low

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. dollar plunged to its lowest level since World War II against the Japanese yen today, increasing concern about Japan's huge trade surplus and its possible impact on export industries at home.

The dollar closed at 253.00 yen in trading at Tokyo's foreign exchange banks, the lowest since the fixed rate of 360 yen to the dollar was set April 25, 1949. The previous low was 253.20 yen on July 9, 1973, shortly after the Japanese currency was allowed to float on world markets.

Moving to avoid foreign criticism, Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda ordered his cabinet ministers to increase imports and reduce Japan's foreign currency holding, estimated at $17 billion.

Japan already was under strong pressure to increase its imports from the United States and West European countries to correct trade imbalance in its favor.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry said it would reduce its foreign exchange reserves by at least $700 million this year by increasing imports of crude oil and other commodities.

Farmers rally

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — In 1914 a farmer could trade two bushels of corn for a pair of shoes, but today the farmer would have to swap more than 10 bushels for the same shoes.

That's the problem thousands of mid-American farmers hope to bring to the nation's attention today in a rally for the higher crop prices they say are necessary to insure the nation's agricultural future.

The Panhandle, rally, a venting of farmers' frustration, began with sending a strike message to the federal government. An estimated 15,000 farmers from 30 states are expected to participate.

White House won't redo energy bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said today that his administration would "absolutely not" consider rewriting its battered energy plan to ensure congressional passage.

He said the oil and gas industries have "a public passion for confusing themselves with the deserving poor. They are just not the deserving poor."

Schlesinger, echoing President Carter's strong denunciation of the industry at a Thursday news conference, said the Carter plan is "the only reasonable way to attack the energy problem."

The new energy secretary spoke out as oil industry officials reacted bitterly to Carter's Thursday warning about "potential war profiteering in the impending energy crisis. This could develop in the passing months," he said, "as the biggest rip-off in history."

"The oil companies apparently want it all," Carter said. "Our proposals would give the oil companies the highest prices for oil in all the world, but still they want more."

Today, Schlesinger was asked if he would consider rewriting the program to fit congressional and industry expectations. "Absolutely not," was his immediate response.

He was interviewed on ABC's Good Morning America program.

F16 gets approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force F16 — a light-weight fighter to be used by the United States and at least five other nations — is going into production.

Deputy Defense Secretary Charles W. Duncan, acting in the absence of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, who is in Europe, announced Thursday he had given formal approval to a high-level Pentagon review panel's recommendation to build 105 of the planes in the next 12 months.

Full production of the fighter into the 1980s is expected to cost $13.8 billion.

General Dynamics will build 1,388 of the $9.8 million fighter planes for the U.S. Air Force. The aircraft was designed as a less expensive alternative to the $17 million first-line F15 fighter.

PROF. BERTIL OHLIN, SWEDEN ... shares award with James Meade

Pair wins Nobel in economy

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The 1977 Nobel Prize for economics was awarded today to a former Swedish Minister of Commerce and one of Britain's top economists for their "path-breaking" theories on the effects of world trade.

The Royal Academy of Sciences split the $145,000 prize between Professor Bertil Ohlin, 78, professor emeritus of the Stockholm School of Economics, and Professor James Meade, 70, of Cambridge University, England.

The award cited "their path-breaking contributions to the theory of international trade and international capital movements."

"It's stupefying and gratifying," Meade said when he heard the news upon his arrival at University College in Buckingham to lecture.

Contested at his Stockholm home, Ohlin said, "It is a great encouragement to me that the scientific work I interrupted to go into politics has been rewarded this way."

Though Ohlin's major work appeared in 1933 and Meade's in 1950-55, the Academy said, "The breadth and importance of (their) contributions have, however, not become obvious until the 1960s and 1970s" — a time when the world's economies have become increasingly internationalized and interdependent.

Prof. Assar Lindbeck, a member of the Academy, said that Ohlin could be considered the man who developed the theory and Meade was the man who put it into practice.

He said that Ohlin's theory "is one of the oldest in economic analysis."

Ohlin, a former leader of Sweden's Liberal Party from 1917 to 1967, served as minister of commerce in 1944-45.

The Academy said Meade was "the leading pioneer in the field of international macrotheory and international economic policy" and "has demonstrated the effects of economic policy on foreign trade and penetrated the problems of stabilization policies in 'open' economies."

Open economies are those that are greatly dependent on foreign trade.

Meade, who lives in Cambridge, was professor of economics there from 1957-68. He previously had been a member of the Economic Secretariat at the League of Nations in Geneva, member and later head of the British government's Economic Secretariat, and a professor of foreign trade at the London School of Economics.

Meade is best known for "The Theory of International Economic Policy." Ohlin's classic work was, "International and Regional Trade."

The Academy said Ohlin had "developed a theory that demonstrates which factors determine the pattern of foreign trade and the international division of labor on the one hand, and on the other, shows what effect foreign trade has on allocation of resources, price relations and the distribution of income."

Ohlin received his doctorate at the Stockholm School of Economics in 1919. He was professor at the University of Copenhagen (1924-29), and professor of economics at the Stockholm School of Economics from 1929-45.

Unlike the other prizes which were endowed by the late Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, and have been awarded since 1901, the economics prize was established by the Central Bank of Sweden in 1968 and was first awarded in 1969.

U.S. keeps indirect PLO ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States maintains its pledge to Israel to have no direct contact with the Palestine Liberation Organization, but there are plenty of indirect contacts, including some through the Russians.

State Department officials told reporters the Soviet Union, which has more influence "in certain areas" than the United States, is being used "for more accurate reporting" in indirect contacts with the PLO.

U.S. officials said Saudi Arabia is still a principal channel of indirect communication between the United States and the PLO.

In addition, an American businessman, Landrum Bolling of the Lilly Endowment Inc., said he is one of many people who have reported to the State Department on contacts he has had with Yasser Arafat, head of the PLO.

The State Department issued a statement Thursday in reference to Bolling's contacts, saying: "We have not sanctioned anybody to carry messages to or from the PLO or act in any way on behalf of the U.S. government."

Bolling agreed, but he added: "I must be one of about 25 people who are carrying messages back to the State Department from the PLO. The basic message I brought back from Arafat is that the recognition of Israel's right to exist is the PLO's main card, and they can't play it yet, before they even get into the negotiations."

The United States, in a pledge signed in September, 1975, by Henry Kissinger, said it would have no direct contact with the PLO until the PLO recognized Israel's right to exist.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance sidestepped questions about whether President Carter had been "brutal" with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan during a late-night negotiating session in New York last week.

Medicaid, medicare penalties stiffen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation on President Carter's desk would provide stiffer penalties for doctors and druggists who defraud the government's Medicaid and Medicare programs.

The House approved the bill 402 to 5 Thursday and the Senate endorsed it by voice vote. It increases penalties to a maximum $25,000 fine and five years imprisonment. Such crimes now are generally misdemeanors with penalties that vary up to a maximum of $10,000 and one year.

HEW estimates $1 billion a year is wasted in Medicare and Medicaid abuses.

The President is expected to sign the measure quickly.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate health finances subcommittee, called the bill "a clear, loud warning to thieves and crooks... that will be heard in unmistakable tones."

How to keep your next building from costing too much and taking too long.

The normal approach to building is a complicated process with little communication among the key people involved—owners, architects, engineers, contractors and suppliers.

When no one person is clearly in control, it's difficult even to estimate, much less manage, the time and money needed for a given project.

But today, a number of experienced, independent, local contractors, called Construction Control Group, is practicing a different approach. An approach that makes construction a cohesive, controlled process.

You Stay in Control From Start to Finish.

Under this approach, you assign the responsibility of your entire building project to one professional source, a Construction Control Group member.

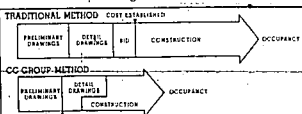

You get the benefit of years of construction experience and proven management ability right from the start. In your dealings not only with suppliers and subcontractors but with architects and engineers as well.

You're assured a clear and constant line of communication. You remain informed and in control through every step of planning, design and construction.

You Save Time, Money and a Lot of Headaches.

Being independent, local construction professionals, Construction Control Group members know your area. They're on top of local conditions affecting construction. They know the subcontractors, what they can do and what they can't. They know subcontractor commitments and performance records. They know the labor situation. This local knowledge is essential in the execution of fast track construction, a time and money saving method that allows construction to begin before the design is completely finished.

The open communication created by the Construction Control Group approach helps to eliminate contingency pricing. Because subcontractors know exactly where they stand and what is expected, they can bid much more accurately.

In many cases, contracts for each system can be awarded separately as a job moves along. And cost-saving suggestions may come from the firms competing for the work. The flexibility of the Construction Control Group approach lets you take advantage of this kind of healthy competition.

It's Easy to Put This Approach to Work For You.

Control what this approach to building is all about. So it's vitally important that a Construction Control Group member be involved in a project from its earliest planning stages.

As far as paying for their services, there's no rigid formula. They will work with you to establish the contractual agreement best suited to your project, whether it be on a cost-plus, lump sum, guaranteed maximum, or some other basis.

Whether you're a proprietor or corporate buyer—whether your project is large or small—if you're ready to talk about building, the first step toward getting the right building at the right price in the right amount of time is an easy one.

BOTH HANDS ON THE WHEEL.

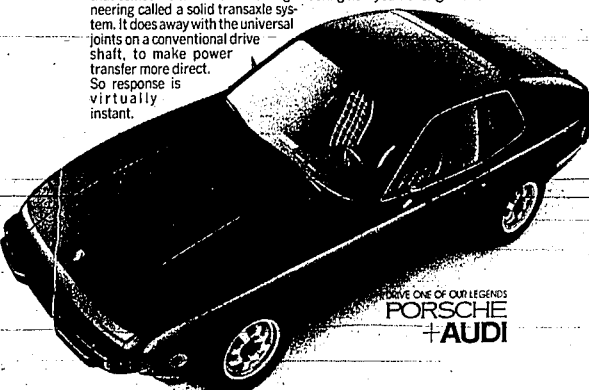

Now you can combine the ease of an automatic with the thrill of driving a Porsche.

Because we've made our Porsche 924 with an automatic option. It's the first fully automatic transmission ever in a Porsche.

But whether you choose the 924 with automatic or 4-speed manual, you'll get the driving excitement that comes from a rare feat of engineering called a solid transaxle system. It does away with the universal joints on a conventional drive shaft, to make power transfer more direct. So response is virtually instant.

The arrangement also gives the Porsche 924 an almost perfect 50-50 weight distribution and a low center of gravity. This helps keep the 924's body lean to a bare minimum even on tight curves.

Its sleek glass hatchback opens with a touch to reveal 18 cubic feet of carrying space. So even a golf bag will fit without wedging or wondering how you'll ever get it out.

Another thing that fits neatly into the hatchback is our optional sun roof. Once unlocked, it easily lifts out to brighten up any drive.

You breeze down the highway getting 30 mpg, 18 in the city (EPA estimates for standard transmission.) Of course, your actual mileage may vary depending on how and where you drive, the condition of your car, and the options you choose.

Naturally, things like CIS fuel injection, overhead cam engine, rack-and-pinion steering and orthopedically designed bucket seats are standard equipment.

And while the 924 is everything you'd expect from a Porsche, it's less than you'd expect to pay. Under $10,000*. A rather small price, considering our standards.

Bergland's efforts should get cheers

In startling bits and pieces the potential dangers of prolonged exposure to chemical pesticides and herbicides have been detected by American scientists and farmers.

In 1964, Rachael Carson warned of DDT's toxicity after observing paper-thin egg shells in wild birds who had eaten DDT-infested rodents.

A decade later, chemicals basic to everyday garden and weedkillers contaminated and sickened hundreds of people in Michigan.

Throughout the 1970s, scientists began to find links between man-made chemicals and cancer.

Then, this week, the basic ingredient in 90 plant workers who handled the substance (DBCP).

This emerging pattern linking many chemicals to disabling diseases and other maladies concerns many farmers.

Men and women who work in agriculture not only have grown to depend on chemicals for successful farming, they also are a segment of the population which comes into close contact with potentially dangerous chemicals every season.

This fall, U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland has directed his agency to hasten its efforts to acquaint farmers with non-chemical ways of controlling pests.

Bergland's attempt to get American farmers interested in applying pesticides selectively and in combination with other kinds of pest management programs should be widely cheered.

Many Idaho and Magic Valley farmers are investigating ways to cut down the use of pesticides.

It is farmers who can best determine ways of reducing pesticide applications. Many Idaho agriculturalists already are working with the University of Idaho on programs to cut out unnecessary chemical spraying.

An agricultural state such as Idaho stands to gain much by being on the forefront of the effort to reduce the farmers' reliance on potentially harmful chemicals.

Lawyers propose grand jury change

By KENNETH ESKEY.

Rooting out crime and corruption will be more difficult than ever if Congress goes along with a change in the grand jury system proposed by the American Bar Association.

The ABA House of Delegates has overwhelmingly endorsed permitting witnesses called before grand juries to bring their lawyers into the grand jury room while answering questions.

This is contrary to current federal law and to the law in most states, where grand jury witnesses are required to leave the room if they insist on talking to a lawyer.

The ABA says lawyers would be present only as advisers to their clients, not as active participants. But prosecutors are afraid—as well they should be—that lawyers will disrupt the proceedings by raising objections of all kinds.

The presence of a lawyer could be particularly damaging in racketeering cases because it might cause a witness to clam up, knowing his statements were being relayed back to the mob.

It also would be harder to expose conspiracies if a lawyer were able to sit on grand jury testimony and prevent nervous witnesses from contradicting each other.

Small wonder that Attorney General Griffin B. Bell calls the ABA proposal a "lawyer relief act"—another way to keep lawyers busy and prosperous—and promises to lobby against it in Capitol Hill.

The grand jury system, like any other law enforcement tool, has been abused from time to time—primarily by overzealous prosecutors trying to make names for themselves.

On balance, though, the system has worked well, especially in cases involving political corruption or organized crime. Why destroy its effectiveness by turning it into a pale imitation of a criminal trial?

Brings on trouble

Carter challenges difficult issues

WASHINGTON—President Carter is in deep trouble for the first time since he entered the White House, but in fairness, he is in trouble because he has had the audacity to face up to the most difficult national and international problems of our times.

Make a list of the most powerful special interest lobbies in Washington, and there is scarcely a one of them that he hasn't challenged: the labor lobby, the Israeli lobby, the oil and gas lobby, and the automobile lobby to begin with.

Also: the lobbies for the blacks, the Chicanos, the elites, the farmers, and abortion. And in addition, the lobbies "against" the Russians, free trade, equal rights for women, affirmative action in education, and changing the status of the Panama Canal.

This is not a one-way battle either. For every concession he makes to the consumer lobby, he is whiplashed by the big business lobby in the other direction. When he challenges the Soviets on their violations of human rights, it is said that he can't get on with Moscow, and when he cooperates with Moscow on the Middle East, he raises a storm in Israel.

Every president since the last World War has had to face this tangle, which is called democracy. So what's new? In Carter's case, however, things are different. He has decided to take on the powerful lobbies at the same time, to fight on every front, on every continent, and on every issue from economics to theology.

The reaction to all this is mixed. The diplomatic reports going out from Washington to the other capitals of the world in the last few days are quite different from the newspaper and electronic reports going out to the American people.

In general, Carter is being praised in the diplomatic reports for trying to get down to fundamental questions: to get the cooperation of the Soviet Union on human rights, arms control and a compromise settlement in the Middle East. Most diplomats in Washington seem to agree that Palestinians do have "legitimate rights" and that there is no way, considering the geography and politics of the world, that the Soviets can be "kept out" of a peace agreement in the Middle East.

The newspaper reports to the American people are quite different. They deal, primarily, with the opposition to Carter's Middle Eastern, energy, economic, and Panama policies, with his troubles in the Congress on these issues, and with his personal and political tactics.

These newspaper reports, emphasizing the negative and the opposition, have surprised, troubled and irritated Carter. He came to Washington proclaiming the "goodness" of the American people, and relying on a Democratic Congress to support a Democratic president. But like President Kennedy before him, he has lately been discovering that the "goodness" of the American people is overwhelmed by the selfishness of the special interest lobbies; and that the Democratic Congress has a will of its own.

Also, he has made some surprising mistakes. Not since the last war have we had a President who was more available to the Congress, the press, business and labor, or had such exquisite personal manners.

But lately in his presentation of major policies, he has been bent and alone, not only in his handling of the Bert Lance case, but in his latest pronouncements on the Middle East.

The first hope and major demand of the Congress and the allies—even of the Soviets—is that they should never be surprised by sudden twists or turns of American policy. But Jimmy Carter keeps surprising them by passing long on first down.

He advocated a "homeland" for the Palestinians without checking it out even with his own State Department. He announced his energy and welfare programs without analyzing the opposition in the Congress, and he called for support of his Panama treaties before the next was published or both sides agreed on what it meant.

So he is in trouble with the lobbies, the Congress, and even with his own party and for another reason. For while he has defied the lobbies, he keeps on trying to compromise with them. When he runs into opposition on his $50 tax rebate proposal, he retreats. When he makes a deal with the Soviets on the Middle East Geneva conference, and runs into the savage opposition of the pro-Israel lobby, he embraces his bad-mannered "friend," Koch, the Democratic candidate for mayor of New York.

All this puzzles Washington—the members of his own party, the opposition, the allies, and the international community. And yet they respect Carter's courage, and his determined intention to confront the major issues at home and abroad. If he is in trouble now, it is probably because he has taken on too much too soon.

Ancient scene of sea battle to be probed

SPETISHIS, Greece—Tentative arrangements are now under way to start exploring the sea bottom wreckage of a great naval battle which changed the strategic balance in the Mediterranean here more than seven centuries ago. The little known battle was between this island sea's two great fleets, those of Genoa and Venice.

C.L. SULZBERGER

The encounter was called Sette-Pozzi, as this small island's tiny neighbor, Spetsialpoula, was known by the Italian maritime world. Sette-Pozzi means "seven wells" and, in the middle ages, Spetsialpoula was famous for its fresh water springs. This blessing has long since vanished. Stavros Niarochs, Greek shipping millionaire and present owner of the island, must import the precious fluid by tanker to fill his cisterns.

In the early summer of 1263 A.D. a Venetian war-fleet pounced upon a Genoese convoy of merchant barracks and fighting galleys, descending secretly from hiding places on both sides of Spetsialpoula to strike and largely destroy a concentration of Genoese vessels. The confrontation occurred near Spetsialpoula.

Genoa and Venice, then contending for superiority in the Western world, were already aligned on opposing sides. The Venetian republic had sold its formidable fleet's services to warriors of the Fourth Crusade who, in 1204, embarked on an expedition supposedly designed to liberate Jerusalem and Christian holy places from Islamic control.

Instead, under Venice's guidance, they landed at Constantinople (today's Istanbul), and seized it from the Greek Orthodox emperor in the Roman Catholic pope's name. A large French assemblage of crusaders, known as "Franks," forgot their Palestinian goal and conquered most of Greece and its islands for Roman, instead of Greek, catholicism.

Venice, which acted as the carrier, was blessed by Rome for its major role in the expedition against a schismatic church. Genoa, however, which took no part, consequently received special privileges from the Byzantine emperor of Constantinople, and was excommunicated by the Vatican in 1264.

At the time of the crucial battle, Venice held various forts on the Greek mainland as well as a major naval base at Nauplia, north of here, and a minor base in the Spetsial Old Harbor. Genoa occupied no territory but, thanks to its friendship with the Byzantine emperor, was allowed the use of port facilities at his remaining stronghold of Monemvasia, a fortified harbor west of here.

Venetian intelligence apparently learned a huge Genoese formation was bound from its Monemvasia refuge eastward toward the Cyclades islands, probably Constantinople, perhaps to the Black Sea where Genoa dominated valuable trade. Consequently, Venice's fleet struck with sudden surprise and immense effect.

The ultimate result was to partition control of the east Mediterranean, where naval rather than land superiority always confers strategic dominance. Venice gained gradually increasing ascendancy ultimately marked by her remaining seizures all the way from Mistra in the Peloponnese to Rhodes, Cyprus and Euboea.

Venice also gained control of European commerce with Egypt and Asia Minor, leaving to Genoa only a superior status in Constantinople and Black Sea markets. While this situation existed the eastern Mediterranean was in a position not dissimilar from today, when the United States has naval superiority plus use of bases in Italy and Greece, but the Soviet fleet is strong enough to pose a threat, although it has few remaining land facilities.

Who owns political rights to the canal?

WASHINGTON—The hottest issue for the conservatives in this country is the Panama Canal. The big question is who owns the American political rights to the canal?

There are some people who feel the canal belongs to Ronald Reagan. One of his people told me, "Ronnie discovered the Panama Canal before anybody else. No one even knew it was there until he raised the issue in his try for the Presidency. It's Ronnie's Canal and we're not going to let anyone take it away from him."

Friends of Sen. Jesse Helms insist the canal belongs to him. A supporter said, "A senator should have precedent over a defeated Republican candidate for the Presidency. Jesse is willing to go to war before he will allow the United States to sign a treaty with Panama. It's a personal thing with Jesse and has nothing to do with politics. He loves that canal. When he was a kid he used to sail toy boats on it. Some of his friends live in the Canal Zone. The thought of anyone but Americans running that canal makes him sick. Ronald Reagan said that canal makes him the emotional investment in it that Jesse does, and we're serving notice that if anyone tries to take this issue away from Helms they're going to have to fight for it."

Sen. Strom Thurmond's man ridiculed the idea that the Panama Canal belonged to Ronald Reagan or Jesse Helms. "Strom's been worried about the Panama Canal from the moment he came into the Senate. He's been expecting something like this to happen ever since he fought with Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders in the Spanish-American War."

"That long ago?" I said.

"Longer than that. The Panama Canal is Strom's baby, and Reagan and Helms better keep their cotton-pickin' hands off it."

A newcomer who has suddenly laid claim to the Panama Canal issue is Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas. Dole sees it as a chance for a shot at the Republican nomination for President in 1980. He even went so far as to release a State Department classified cable to stake his right to the canal.

"Bob," said a friend, "was heartbroken when former President Ford came out for the treaty. It hurt him deeply and had he known at the time where Ford stood, he would never have accepted the vice-presidential nomination in 1976."

"Do you think he'll speak to Ford any more?"

"Would you speak to someone who wants to give you an American-built canal?"

There are, of course, others who are maintaining that the Panama Canal belongs to them. Former Secretary of the Treasury Bill Simon, who also has presidential ambitions, has been organizing the financial fight to defeat the treaty, but so far he can't get any television time.

John Connally wants a piece of the Canal issue just in case he decides to run, but as his man told me, "John's not greedy. He's willing to share it with the Daughters of the American Revolution."

One of the big surprises is that William Buckley, the conservative's writer-in-residence has endorsed President Carter's treaty in four columns.

This has angered his brother, former Sen. James Buckley, who is thinking of disowning William for such treachery. In a letter to the Washington Star, Jim Buckley's legislative assistant angrily wrote that Bill was speaking for himself and not for his brother in the column.

Those of us who know both men are praying that they can work out some kind of compromise. It would be a pity after all these years if the Panama Canal turned brother against brother.

In spite of the people I talked to the Panama Canal issue is still up for grabs. Unless Ronald Reagan can produce a deed proving he owns it, we may see a bloody fight amongst the conservatives laying claim to it. And if this takes place the Panama Canal is sure to go down the drain.

Television attempting access to courtroom

WASHINGTON—The televising this past week of a criminal trial in Florida highlights a recent move in a number of states to bring television into the courtroom.

"It is an effort being strongly supported by television journalists who have long complained, based on a 1965 Supreme Court decision, that their news medium is accorded second-class status as far as the courts are concerned."

Currently, television is authorized, in varying circumstances, in criminal trial courts in Florida, Alabama, Colorado, Nevada, Kentucky and Washington.

It is also permitted in appellate court arguments in Georgia, Alabama and Florida. In some cases the TV film is being used only on a limited basis, while in Florida and Alabama it is authorized on a routine basis.

In addition, there are proposals pending for opening up courts to television in California and Idaho.

The federal courts, however, based on the Supreme Court's 1965 decision in Estes v. Texas, still bar television. And there is no indication that the Supreme Court is interested in changing that rule.

Chief Justice Warren Burger is known to believe that television distorts events by selecting those portions it chooses to cover and not broadcasting others.

Burger, for example, will not permit full TV coverage of his state of the Judiciary speeches. He insists on making a special TV appearance giving a summary edited by him.

The long-term hostility towards TV in the courtroom is based on the Estes case decision, in which the court said the presence during the trial of bright lights, microphones, noisy cameras, tangled cables and other disruptive technical equipment had deprived Estes of his right to a fair trial conducted in an atmosphere of "dignity" and "decorum."

However, the late Justice Tom Clark, who wrote the decision, also made the following prophecy about television—which television says has now been fulfilled:

"When the advances in these arts permit reporting by television without their present hazard to a fair trial, we will have another case." Television now argues that the day has arrived. With electronic advances in television, cameras are small, quiet and cause normal lighting. Parabolic microphones pick up sound in all parts of the courtroom.

Tax cut timed for 1978 boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The tax cut President Carter intends to seek from Congress will be shaped and timed to give the economy a boost in 1978 if needed.

"The rapidity with which tax cuts would be instituted would certainly be motivated by the state of the economy — whether or not it does need stimulation early or whether that stimulation could come late," the President told a news conference Thursday.

A number of economists have said that a slump is in the offing in the last six months of 1978 unless the government acts to spur spending by consumers and businesses.

It was the first time Carter has confirmed plans to propose a tax cut. He did not say how large a cut he would propose, but administration sources have said he probably would call for a reduction of up to $22 billion, with about a third of the benefits going to individuals and the rest to businesses.

Carter said his tax cuts would be tied to proposals for reforming the tax system, which during his 1976 campaign he called "a disgrace."

Abortion dispute delays benefits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House and Senate are likely to find it hard to settle their abortion dispute in the next two weeks before it once again threatens to hold up billions of dollars for government pay and benefits for the needy.

The two houses agreed Thursday to a resolution continuing the pay and benefits of the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, and several smaller agencies, until the end of October. President Carter promptly signed it.

That averted an immediate government crisis which had threatened because the abortion deadlock delayed final action on a $60 billion Labor-HEW appropriations bill. But it left the abortion issue itself still far from settled.

Here is where it stands: Both houses would allow the federal government to pay for an abortion for a poor woman under the Medicaid program if her life is endangered by a continued pregnancy. In addition, the Senate would authorize abortion funds in cases of rape or incest "or if the mother or fetus would suffer serious health damage."

The House language is more restrictive. It would permit only "medical procedures" such as dilation and curettage "performed before the fact of pregnancy, as established in cases of rape and incest which are reported to law enforcement authorities. And it would eliminate the 'serious health damage' clause. There are several other provisions in the bills on which there is little or no dispute. On Thursday the House rejected the Senate's language on "serious health damage" by a vote of 234-163, insisting on its own position.

Rep. Newton Steers, R-Md., trying to persuade his colleagues to adopt the Senate formula, said it would allow abortions to be paid for in cases involving cardiovascular, neurological, metabolic and gastrointestinal diseases, cancer and severe psychosis.

The House language would not finance abortions for poor women in those cases.

"It's almost unbelievable," Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., told the House. "We're talking about cancer and heart disease. And we're saying no, because you're poor and because you're on Medicaid."

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., author of existing law which prevents federal funding of abortion except to save the life of the mother, said the Senate's language on rape and incest is "an invitation to gigantic, wholesale fraud; a woman merely walks in and says 'I was raped.'"

As to the Senate's language on "serious health damage," he asked the House: "Would you kill Helen Keller?"

Dissident reaches Vienna

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Leading Soviet dissident Valentin Turchin arrived in Vienna today on an emigration visa from the Soviet Union and appealed to the Western countries to continue their defense of human rights after the Belgrade conference.

He was accompanied by his wife Tanya, two sons and two other dissidents, Khoron Lubarski and Boris Vail and their families.

Turchin, founder of the unofficial Soviet branch of Amnesty International, said he had to leave the Soviet Union after resisting pressure by authorities to leave for three years.

Turchin said he would stay a few days in Austria and then take up a teaching position at Columbia University in New York after visits to Holland and Finland.

Referring to the Belgrade Conference on European Security, Turchin said the Soviet Union violates the Helsinki accords on human rights "by arresting innocent people."

In Moscow earlier, Turchin fought back tears and waved a final farewell to about 100 friends as he left the Soviet Union for exile in the West.

"It is hard ... hard to leave my friends," the soft-spoken dissident leader said. "I have no thoughts at this moment."

Turchin, 46, wearing a brown overcoat and cap, hugged and kissed Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov and shook hands with dozens of other dissidents before his departure from Moscow Airport for Vienna.

He also wept as he embraced and kissed a shabbily dressed teen-ager.

There were a few "case moments at Soviet customs. Officials took medicine for Turchin's heart, stomach and nerve ailments, along with 68 rubles ($93.84) before allowing him to leave.

Turchin had headed the unofficial Soviet branch of Amnesty International, the human rights organization that was awarded the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize earlier this week.

After a brief stay in Vienna, he will go to New York for a teaching job at Columbia University.

Turchin has faced repeated arrests, questioning and searches of his home by Soviet KGB secret police. He has not worked in his field of computer science for the past three years because of his activities.

Canada hosts Queen today

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada prepared today for a six-day visit by Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip on their last overseas tour of the Silver Jubilee year marking the queen's accession to the throne.

The 51-year-old monarch and her husband were scheduled to arrive on Canadian Forces jet this afternoon. Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Quebec's Governor-General Jules Léger and his wife headed the official welcoming party.

Elizabeth's guard of honor was drawn from cadets at the Royal Military College and the 2nd Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Regiment was chosen to fire a 21-gun salute to her.

A month of cloud and rain broke this week and weathermen forecast "royal weather" today for the queen's first visit to Ottawa since August 1973.

The queen and Prince Philip will be housed during their six-day visit at Rideau Hall, the official residence of the governor general.

No public engagements were arranged for the royal couple on the opening and closing days of their visit, but the four days in between promise to be hectic.

On Sunday she will attend an interfaith service at Parliament Hill Sunday, then travel by train to the small Quebec town of Wakefield to lunch with the 10 premiers at the prime minister's official country residence at Harrington Lake.

Sunday night the queen will address the nation in a broadcast from Rideau Hall and open a new session of Parliament Tuesday — only the second time the monarch has read the Speech from the Throne.

Among her many other engagements, she will watch the first half of a Canadian Football League game at Lansdowne Park Saturday. That evening she will dine with Trudeau and then attend a concert at the National Arts Centre featuring top Canadian performers.

The royal party leaves Ottawa Wednesday to complete the queen's final jubilee year tour with a visit to the British Caribbean.

At 94 he's learning to pilot plane

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — What do you do for an encore if, so far, you've earned your master's degree at 91, traveled through Europe at 92 and taken up French at 93?

If you're 94-year-old Fred B. Noble, you take your first flying lesson.

"It's just one other thing I'd like to know something about," Noble said Thursday when he showed up for his first lesson in a four-seat Piper PA28.

"I want to take a flight on my 100th birthday. When I get over this goal, then I'll begin to think about something else."

The tireless nonagenarian says he gave up driving only last year because he considered the price of auto insurance "ridiculous."

Noble's instructor is Al James, 70, of the Bill Gardner Flight Center, a veteran of 52 years aloft.

"I'm sure he'll be able to learn to fly," said James as he helped Noble into the cockpit. "I've taught two 65-year-old men to fly. One of them soloed and bought his own plane."

Noble, who still practices law, underwent surgery some months ago. He came out of it all right, and the doctor told Noble's daughter, Mrs. Jack McQuerry, that her father "should be permitted to do anything he wants to do."

"That's what I want to do," Noble asserted as he gazed up at the sky. "I feel very capable about learning how to fly."

Noble said he first began thinking about flying several years ago when one of his law associates, who flew his own plane, suggested flying lessons.

"I made a firm decision about three months ago," he said. "I didn't discuss it with anybody at all — just talked it over with myself."

Noble, who is now studying languages at Jacksonville University, has four college degrees. In 1974 he studied law at Oxford University in England and later French at La Rochelle University in France.

First chimpanzee heart implanted

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Heart transplant pioneer Christian Barnard is the first surgeon to implant a chimpanzee heart in a human being — a 60-year-old patient who was reported doing well.

Barnard, who made history nearly 10 years ago with the first human-to-human heart transplant, said he was "very tired" from the four-hour operation Thursday afternoon in Groote Schuur Hospital.

Barnard, 55, planned to elaborate on the operation today, according to sources at the hospital who said the patient, identified only as a 60-year-old white person, was recovering satisfactorily.

The sources said the chimpanzee heart implant was similar to the procedure Barnard used earlier this year to implant a baboon heart in a female woman, who died within hours after the operation.

After that operation — the first time he tried using a baboon heart — Barnard told reporters that heart had been too weak to help the woman's blood keep flowing. He said chimpanzee hearts are larger and therefore "more compatible with humans."

Mexican Bible slated

CORUJOA, Mexico (UPI) — The first Bible ever written in Mexican Indian vernacular is about to be published by the Franciscan mission in Chiapas, the state which borders Guatemala and was one of the major centers of Mayan civilization.

The Bible will be written in Mayan and he called "Chujulujun."

According to Franciscan Friar Facundo Ramirez, only 20 percent of the 120,000 Indians who live in the region can read and write. He believes that the Biblical doctrines can more easily be transmitted in the native tongue due to low educational level of the population.

The new Bible is the first translation made by Catholics and Evangelists in history, said Facundo Ramirez.

Religion factor helped elect Carter

© Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — "Jimmy Carter is President of the United States, not because of the 'religious' factor, but because of the 'religious' factor."

That's the assessment of the Rev. James M. Wall, editor of Christian Century magazine.

Wall, addressing a communications workshop of the Lutheran Church in America here this week, said Carter's political success did not stem from the President's church membership or from policy positions attributed to his faith.

These points which are "capable of objective measurement," comprise the "religious" factor, Wall said.

But the "religious" factor — a key ingredient in the President's victory, according to Wall — is grounded in a feeling among voters about the depth and integrity of the candidate's religious convictions.

"It's a gut reaction that a public policymaker does or does not possess a religious faith," Wall said.

Voters responded to Jimmy Carter, a one-time seaman in his local Baptist Church, out of a sense that his religious convictions played a central role in his life, Wall said.

This "religious" factor was not without drawbacks for Carter, Wall said. He recalled that it troubled some Southerners, who, having rejected their religious upbringing, found in Carter a disturbing reminder from their past.

It also troubled some Jews, who expected that Carter would limit the government with people evangelizing on every corner," Wall said.

And, he added, it confused members of the Campaign press corps, who alternated between calling Carter an "evangelicalist" and a "fundamentalist."

Wall, who was chairman of Carter's presidential campaign in Illinois last year, cited voting returns from an area of downstate Illinois to illustrate the strength of the religion factor in the Carter campaign.

In that area, where the population is commanding "mainstream Protestant," Wall said, Carter scored an impressive gain over the vote received by the two previous Democratic presidential candidates.

Hubert Humphrey, running against Richard Nixon, received 37 per cent of the vote from that area in 1968, and George McGovern, pitted against Nixon, got 34 per cent in 1972, Wall said.

But in 1976 Carter received 47 per cent of the area's vote against Gerald Ford, Wall said.

He said the two preceding elections appeared to represent a normal Republican vote being cast.

"What was different in 1976?" Wall asked.

"I submit it was the religion factor," he said. Voters who ordinarily would vote for a Democrat had a "feeling this man is religious, that his word can be relied on."

The public's perception of Carter as a man of faith, a man guided by spiritual and religious principles, could backfire on the President, Wall said.

It was for that reason that the Bert Lance affair, in which Carter seemed to some to be tolerant of what appeared to be improprieties committed by the former budget director before he entered government service.

Construction work on new Buhl high school slow

Friday, October 14, 1977 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 9

BUILD — Progress on the new Buhl high school building was described as "very slow" Tuesday night. In a building report by Dan Mabe, superintendent, to the school board.

He said the contractor has encountered a large amount of rock which is slowing down the foundation work and in general things are moving very slowly. Plumbing work, he said, is in got shape in the main building but is not well advanced in the agriculture department building.

"Must say, however," Mabe said, "the quality of the work has been done in excess. All of the concrete (legions) passed with flying colors and other completed area of the building are in excellent shape."

He estimated there is about 200 feet of rock left to be removed in the area of the building foundations. He estimated the additional rock will cost the school district a sizeable portion of the reserve funds held for change orders and anticipated problems.

School patrons voted $2.5 million a year ago in bonds for construction of the new building. It is scheduled for completion by the start of school in August, 1978.

School board members Tuesday authorized the superintendent and high school principal Dale Thomsberry to approve any change order under $1,000 and asked any change costing more than that amount be submitted for school board approval.

A new school lunch program was outlined by Kathleen Lunte, board member. She said the Food Service Program, initiated in Nevada, has proven popular with students and easy to handle and administer. The plan, she said, is to serve a Type A meal of the kind of food the students want. For example, instead of a half pint carton of milk, the milk is served in a milk shake machine which adds ingredients for just a few cents more to give the student a milk shake. The board took the lunch proposal under advisement.

The board approved trips for five FFA judging team members and their advisor to Portland and a trip for six DECA delegates to Jackson, Wyo., for a western conference.

Early graduation was approved for two students. Gary Bonar was named Girls Junior Varsity basketball coach.

Bid opening set for TF bridge

By BONNIE BAD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Bids will be opened Oct. 21 by the Twin Falls Highway District for construction of a new bridge on the airport road south of Twin Falls.

Highway district officials said this is another phase of the program to improve the road to the city-county airport because of heavy use.

The new bridge will replace a wooden structure now crossing the towing canal the Twin Falls Canal Co. It is located just south of city water tank at the junction of Highway 47 and airport road.

The bridge will be pre-stressed concrete, 32 feet wide and about 100 feet long. Kih Andersen, district highway engineer, said when completed it will be slightly lower than the present structure with both approaches also lowered to give motorists a clear view of the road and bridge.

The south approach was revised last year and the north approach will be revised as part of the construction project to be finished next week.

Andersen said the highway district board is also working with the city of Twin Falls on a cooperative project to change the roadway entering the airport property. It will be widened and realigned to improve the curves.

Andersen said the work is being done with local funds, although the road would qualify for federal funding. Since the projects are small, the length of time required to make application and gain approval for federal funds makes it more expedient to handle the cost locally. He said the bridge is to be completed in time for the 1978 irrigation season so as not to hamper the Canal Company's water delivery to farmers.

It will be necessary to close the road during construction, Andersen said. Traffic will be rerouted over Blue Lakes Boulevard south to beyond the bridge.

Andersen said the highway district has already completed a number of projects to assist farmers on the Bell Rapids project near Hagerman and other land owners in that area.

The Bliss bridge, just completed by Gooding, Twin Falls counties and Twin Falls and Bliss Highway districts gives these residents a direct connection with the Interstate.

Efforts are now being made to obtain a contract for removal of the old bridge.

The new bridge replaces the old 60- to 65-year-old structure which was maintained with a limited load limit prohibiting school buses and loaded farm trucks. Andersen said realignment of the road from the new bridge and construction of a King Hill Canal bridge are also nearing completion. He said the King Hill Canal crossing is a pipe-and-hill-type structure.

The Bliss Highway District, he said, is planning to improve the road from the town of Bliss to the new Snake River bridge and both districts are continuing to improve farm roads in that area as funds permit.

False passport used by abductor

EPSOM, England (UPI) — Joyce McKinney, the American woman accused of kidnapping a Mormon missionary who killed her in Utah, entered Britain on a false passport and had documents with eight false names, a police chief testified Thursday.

Detective Chief Superintendent Bill Hucksley said Miss McKinney, 27, had confessed she intended to use g shackles, handcuffs, slithers and a mixture to duct 21-year-old American Ek Anderson.

Keith J. May, 24, an assistant architect of Rywood, Calif., and Miss McKinney are charged in Epsom magistrate's court with forcibly abducting, assaulting and injuriously imprisoning Anderson and darning him at a farm cot-nage near Okehampton, 185 miles southwest of London.

Miss McKinney screamed and struggled when she was taken from the closed prison van outside the court but came into the court holding hands with May and they sat together in the dock. They were ordered held for another week.

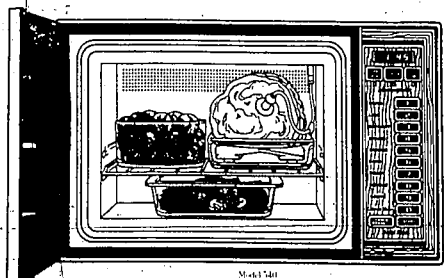

Defense lawyer Stuart Elgrod said the charges were the "culmination of a very personal relationship" between Anderson and Miss McKinney. "Passion was the motive," Elgrod said. "The charges will be strongly contested."

Mormon Church spokesmen have said Anderson dated the attractive blonde woman while both attended Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, but broke up with her before going on his mission in Britain 10 months ago.

FDA eyes diet aid ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) In a move to further reduce the availability of the drug, The Food and Drug Administration wants to ban the use of amphetamines — pep pills — as diet aids.

At present 88 per cent of the legitimate medical use of amphetamines is as an appetite depressant for short-term obesity control.

Even though increased government control during the past decade has reduced the amount of amphetamines that legally can be manufactured by about 75 per cent, "abuse of these drugs continues," said the FDA Wednesday.

The agency has contended the drugs are of only "trivial" use in weight control, and said

"equally effective but less abused drugs are available."

The agency plans a hearing in December on its proposed ban which would, in turn, allow drug enforcement officials to reduce the amount of the drugs which can be manufactured.

It also plans to propose limiting use of the drugs to treatment of narcolepsy and hyperactivity in children, and to publish a brochure for the patient to be included with each prescription explaining the "minimal effectiveness" and potential for abuse.

GLADYS MCBRIDE, KIMBERLY ... will display owls at crafts fair

Member welcomed

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Sue Burwell was welcomed as a new member at the regular business meeting of Soroptimist International of Twin Falls Tuesday evening at George K's.

During the business meeting, under the direction of Fern Smith, president, plans were discussed to get the doll project under way, and it was decided to use the proceeds for equipment for the new Senior Citizen Center.

Ina Howard accepted the responsibility of issuing a monthly bulletin for the club. The members voted that those who had slogans should use them in their introductions.

The next meeting will be a Founders Day dinner and program, featuring "Women Helping Women" awards and Ron Jones as guest speaker.

Tickets sold out

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. J. Garland Biggs, chairman of Magic Valley Community Concert, said there are no season tickets memberships available for newcomers to the communities.

All seating in the Fine Arts auditorium at CSI has been sold, she said. The next subscription drive, with possible openings in membership, will be announced next March.

Arts, crafts fair planned

TWIN FALLS — Senior citizens of Magic Valley will host an arts and crafts fair Saturday and Sunday in the CSI Expo Center.

Included in the activities will be demonstrations of the crafts shown, bus tours of the CSI campus and entertainment.

Entertainers scheduled include western music by John Mancini at 3 p.m. Saturday and barbershop music at 7 p.m. by the Common Taters from Buhl. Sunday at 1:30 p.m. the Moreno family will present Spanish music, with the Mop Top puppets from Twin Falls at 3 p.m.

The Common Taters barbershop quartet, John Mancini with country western songs, the MOP Squad Puppet group will entertain and there will be Spanish songs and dances.

Sandwiches, hot dogs, coffee, pie and soft drinks will be sold and many of the arts and crafts items.

The displays will be open at 10 a.m. each day and remain open until 10 p.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday.

There will be many kinds of jewelry, handmade afghans, pillowcases, quilts, gemstones, rockhound exhibits, paintings and many other items.

A small admission will be charged with proceeds from admission and the sale of food going to the Area IV senior citizen bus fund.

'Y' offers programs

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YMCA's program starting in October and November include a variety of activities for both youth and adults.

On Wednesdays from 8:15 to 9:30 p.m. there will be a beginning bowling program led by Brain Crocker and girls in the fourth through ninth grades. This class will start on Wednesday, Oct. 19 at the Y.

Earl and Stuart Slarry will conduct a class for those interested in learning how to be a magician, and boys and girls in the sixth through ninth grades are welcome. This unique class gets under way on Saturday, Oct. 15 at the Y. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, starting Oct. 18, the Y will have a leather tooling class for boys and girls in the fourth through sixth grades. This class will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. at the Y.

Future events include the annual ski fitness program for adults and teens to begin Thursday, Nov. 10. This class is designed to help the student get in physical shape for the winter ski season. The class will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The Kiwanis Club and the YMCA join together to sponsor the annual marble shooting tournament, which will be held Saturday, Nov. 12, starting at 1:30 p.m. All elementary school age boys and girls are invited to compete.

An annual city-wide table tennis tournament will take place on Saturday, Dec. 3, starting at 9 p.m. This activity is for adults, men and women, and for boys and girls who are in the fourth grade or older.

Yes, we recommend a pass. If you play very weak jump overcalls you might try two spades, but this hand is really too weak for a weak jump overcall.

Today's hand appeared as one of our July articles. South's four-club bid was a slam invitation and North's four-diamond call was a below game acceptance. South felt that when he made a slam try, he had done all he could. He merely rebid to four spades, which North elected to pass. Six spades won't make against a diamond lead even if trumps break and we stated erroneously that even five spades would be impossible against the actual trump break.

The anchors measure 4 by 7 feet and were connected by 30 feet of chain with huge links that measure 8 by 16 inches and weigh 50 pounds apiece. The anchors themselves weigh about 7,000 pounds each.

Using air bags and two 275-pound gallon oil drums, the anchors and chain were lowered into the water by the city divers, where they were lifted from the water with a railroad crane.

Templeton heads new research project

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Dr. Judith A. Templeton has relinquished her job as superintendent of the University of Idaho's southwest Idaho Research and Extension Center to head a new research project on irrigated pasture forage.

Dr. Templeton, head of the center for the past two years, will have the leadership role in planning and developing university research on irrigated forage pasture and range in southwestern Idaho. She will serve as research professor of animal science.

Dr. Auttis M. Mullins, agriculture dean, said that recent federal funding is making the new pasture position possible. In addition, he said, the Idaho Legislature appropriated some funds for fiscal 1978 to enable the experiment station to plan a forage research program in southwestern Idaho.

Mining trial ends in tie

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The first round in a volatile test of the U.S. Forest Service's authority to issue mining regulations was held in U.S. District court here this week. It ended in a tie.

Court officials expected a trial over a dredge mining operation in Benewah County to last only a few hours. But the government appeared with some six hours of testimony prepared for the stand.

Rather than hold the trial then and there, Judge Ray McNichols, Boise, issued a temporary injunction against any operation at the disputed dredge mining site on Sherlock Creek 100 miles east of St. Maries.

Bannock okays land use

POCATELLO (UPI) — Bannock County commissioners voted unanimously today to accept a countywide comprehensive land use plan. The vote on the plan, which was approved several times in past weeks because of unanswered legal questions and because commissioners were anxious for input from other counties.

The plan, required by state law, can be amended every six months. Commissioner Elmer Terry, in addition to moving for adoption of the plan, also moved the group adopt five amendments to the subdivision ordinance.

Among amendments adopted was one defining a recreational subdivision in recreational areas of the county and an amendment which would require all developers in Bannock County to go through a pre-application procedure before development.

This is an attempt by the County Planning Office to improve on-site inspections and to save the developers' time.

The Bannock County Planning and Zoning Commission plans to meet Oct. 25 to continue its update of the county-subdivision ordinance.

Election statistics published

MOSCOW (UPI) — A University of Idaho political scientist has finished the second edition of a book listing Idaho election results.

The book, "Idaho Election Statistics, A Research Monograph," was written by Dr. Alwyn Rouyer and is a condensed list of election data. It includes a section which explains the statistics and "looks to explain certain statistics and what they indicate," Rouyer said. "It is to help the person using the book to understand voting records."

The book is updated every two years and was published by the University Press of Idaho, a division of the Idaho Research Foundation.

Rouyer said the biggest demand for the book comes from politicians who use it to target their election efforts.

Rouyer, associate professor of political science, said the new edition is the most detailed of the series as it includes statistics covering proportional turnout of registered voters in all precincts for the first time.

Rouyer was aided in the compilation by Michael Leifer, a radio communications major at the university.

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Dr. Earl Hayes, former chief scientist for the U.S. Bureau of Mines, will discuss the impact of energy resources on the availability of energy at the University of Idaho Monday.

Hayes will speak at a conference being jointly sponsored by the College of Engineering, College of Mines and the physics and chemistry departments in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

He says oil imports cannot be increased and conservation must become a way of life.

He will discuss what must be done in order for the U.S. to meet its energy needs.

Disaster staged on cue

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A cloud of rich black smoke billowed over Capital City

Airport Wednesday and firemen raced to the aid of victims trapped inside two airplanes. But the whole scene — including National Guard rescue helicopters, firetrucks, wildly burning jet fuel and the victims themselves — was a fake.

The extravaganza, featuring a cast of hundreds, was a training exercise to teach hospitals, firemen, police and emergency medical teams how to respond to a runway airline collision. The two planes, which were supposed to be a Chicago-bound 727 and a turbo prop headed for Detroit, were positioned near the airport's real runways for the drill.

Two hundred fifty gallons of aviation fuel were ignited and smoke bombs were set off, sending columns of fire and black smoke hundreds of feet into the sky.

Airport firefighters dressed in protective silver suits raced to the scene and extinguished the flames with foam. Then, on cue, more than 50 victims trapped inside the two planes began screaming and moaning.

Firefighters and emergency medical teams arrived and began pulling the victims from the make-believe wreckage, placing them on stretchers and taking them to hospitals.

According to the script, 100 persons were supposed to have died in the collision, 45 were seriously injured, 20 had slight injuries and another 20 suffered from shock. Makeup and ketchup provided survivors with gashy wounds.

One victim stumbled out of the plane and collapsed on the ground with all the elat of a silent movie queen. Another, supposedly suffering from shock, fought with firemen and screamed, "I want my ball, I want my ball."

At one point, a few newsmen sneaked away from the drill observation area to interview victims and firemen. An airport security worker tried to shoo them back.

But hey, if this was a real disaster, we'd really be in a bind," one photographer protested.

"Yeah, I know," the guard shot back, "and that's exactly what I mean. Get out of here."

Friends of Park to testify

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two former Korean CIA officials and a longtime business associate of fugitive rice dealer Tongsun Park probably will testify next week at the House Ethics Committee's first hearings on influence-buying in Congress.

The names of some prospective witnesses were reported by sources close to the panel Thursday while two top Justice Department officials were flying in. South Korea to press for a chance to question Park in Seoul as part of a separate but parallel federal investigation.

Identified as likely witnesses at the House hearings were:

— Kim Sang Keun, the No. 2 KCIA man in Washington until he asked for asylum in the United States last November after he was ordered back to Seoul. It would be his first public appearance, although he reportedly has been cooperating privately with federal and congressional investigators for months.

— Gen. Kim Hyung Wook, the KCIA's director from 1963 to 1969 who now lives in exile in New Jersey. In testimony to a House International Relations subcommittee in June he said the KCIA provided $3 million to establish a social-dining club Tongsung Park set up in Washington as a way of gaining access to American officials and lobbying them.

— Jay Shin Ryu, who was Park's closest confidant in the early 1970s. He reportedly has given investigators a list of names of about 20 congressmen who were to receive payments from Park.

— Lee Jai Hyon, who was chief cultural and information officer at the Korean embassy here until 1973, when he defected to the United States. He has said in previous congressional testimony that he saw former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo stuffing hundred dollar bills into envelopes for delivery to Capitol Hill early in 1973. He now teaches journalism at Western Illinois University.

Earlier Thursday, Leon Jaworski, the panel's special counsel, refused to predict whether the first phase of public hearings — set to begin Wednesday — would produce testimony implicating any members of Congress.

"We're going to have to unfold this in a natural manner of the presentation of an inquiry — that's about as far as I can go," the ex-Watergate prosecutor said after a two-hour closed meeting with the committee. Park, the alleged mid-dleman in a KCIA plan to gain favorable U.S. military and political policies by plying congressmen with money and gifts, was indicted by a federal grand jury here in August on 36 counts of bribery, conspiracy, racketeering and mail fraud.

He has refused to come back to Washington for a trial and Korea's government has declined to force him to return because the two nations have no extradition treaty.

In a bid to end that dilemma, Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, head of the criminal division, and Paul Michel, the lawyer running the Justice Department's probe of Korean lobbying, were dispatched to Seoul to try to work out terms for interrogating Park there.

Nazi salutes spark fresh scandal

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Two airmen who gave Nazi salutes and shouted "Hell Hitler!" while on guard duty have triggered a new scandal in the West German armed forces, and officials said Thursday "disciplinary measures have been ordered."

An air force spokesman said the incident took place Sunday at a Luftwaffe barracks of a Phantom jet fighter squadron. The two young airmen on guard duty in the city of Rhein greeted visitors with "Hell Hitler!" and Nazi salutes, he said.

The greeting "Hell Hitler," a substitute for "hello" or "good morning," was obligatory in the German forces under the Nazis. The Nazi salute — the outstretched right hand raised high — also was obligatory during the Hitler regime.

"An investigation is under way," said Lt. Col. Gerhard Schurig, the air force spokesman. "Disciplinary measures have been ordered."

Lt. Gen. Gerhard Limberg, air force chief of staff, said he would not tolerate such actions. He said the slightest sign of Nazi activity would be opposed with all severity and without leniency.

"I am sure that only a few are guilty of such excesses, but even they would not be so uncouth about this dark chapter in our history if the horrible facts of this era were treated thoroughly and with appropriate frankness during their education," he said.

The incident followed disclosure that 11 officers (studied at the Bundeswehr armed forces) College in Munich took part in a make believe game of "burning Jews." The cabinet recommended Wednesday that they be dismissed.

"This is not a problem of the armed forces alone but a problem for our society," Limberg said. "The armed forces only can try to help young people make up for what they have missed in their education."

Cd. Klaus Rimmek, the commander of the 36th Squadron, said he thought the latest incident was not political. He described the two airmen as "simple souls" engaged in a "prank."

The Defense Ministry fired the air force's two top generals earlier this year for inviting Hans Ulrich Rudel, Adolf Hitler's favorite pilot, to an air force reunion.

the past the Laotians have sometimes relied on Soviet and North Vietnamese pilots to fly transports which form the bulk of its air force, sources said.

North Vietnam, which left an estimated 20,000 troops in Laos after the war and which exerts a major influence over the Laotian government, has about 70 MiG-21 jets in its own air force.

Soviet arms supplies to Indochina are believed to have stopped with the end of the war, however. The planes for Laos are the first visible resumption, military sources said.

the Communists might revive an aid claim to the northeast sector of Thailand.

The friction has been aggravated further by Communist charges that the Thais are supporting anti-Communist guerrilla forces — some of them former mercenary troops of the CIA — who are still active in the country. North Vietnamese troops are being used to maintain security in some areas, sources said.

The MiGs are apparently destined to be flown by Laotian pilots who have been trained in the Soviet Union, although in

Soviets send Laos MiG-21 fighters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has given MiG-21 jet fighters to Laos in what is believed to be its first major weapons shipment to Indochina since the end of the war there, government sources report.

The sources said Wednesday about 10 of the jets arrived about six weeks ago in the Laotian capital of Vientiane, located just across the Mekong River from Thailand.

The planes were unloaded from Russian ships at the Vietnamese port of Danang and reassembled at the former U.S. air base there, the sources said, and apparently were flown to Vientiane by Russian pilots.

The delivery gives the Laotian air force its first jet aircraft. The MiG-21s are roughly similar in capabilities to the squadron of 16 U.S. F-5 jet fighters that form Thailand's first-line air defense, sources said.

Relations between Thailand and the Communist government which seized control of Laos after the fall of South Vietnam and Cambodia in April, 1975, have been marked by sporadic border clashes. There has been concern that

MV towns top fund list

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials have put Burley and Jerome near the top of their list of 59 cities to receive federal funds for waste water treatment plants.

The Idaho Board of Health Tuesday formally approved the list and submitted it to the EPA regional office in Seattle.

Also included on the list are Bruneau, Challis, Filer, Hansen, Rexburg, Gooding, Minidoka and Bliss.

Orlando Dake, coordinator for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's environmental division, which prepared the list, said Congress has yet to authorize 1978 EPA funds, but he said he hoped by the time projects are ready to apply for grants, Congress will have freed the money.

Dake pointed out the Idaho projects are ranked according to targeted application date, which places some higher on the list although they may have a lower priority.

"We don't even schedule high priority items for step two (design) money until they're ready," he said.

Highest on the 1978 list among Magic Valley cities is Burley, with an anticipated application date of July, 1977, for two step three (construction) grants totaling $627,000 in EPA assistance. The Burley project is rehabilitation and first phase construction of a secondary waste water treatment facility.

Next on the list is Jerome's waste water treatment plant. Dake said design will cost an estimated $200,000, with $187,000 to come from EPA, and $275 million of the plant's $4.5 to $5 million cost of construction would be funded by the agency.

Planning for the facility is still unfinished, although Dake said he had anticipated an application for the design phase grant in September. Warren McFall, director of EPA for Idaho, said he is meeting Friday with Jerome's consulting engineers, CH2M Hill, Boise, to discuss the final cost study.

"We're just about ready to wrap it up," he said. Bruneau is scheduled for a step one (planning) grant of $8,000 from EPA for a waste water treatment facility. EPA assistance to Challis for upgrading its plant would be $300,000 scheduled for October, 1977.

Phase II construction assistance to Burley scheduled to apply in March; 1978, amounts to $300,000. In August, 1978, Filer is scheduled for $52,000 in EPA funds, and Hansen, for a design grant to upgrade its facilities.

Idaho and the federal government provide a total of 85 per cent funding for the waste water treatment projects, and the state decides which projects get priority, McFall said.

Dake said this is the first time the priorities list has been presented to the Board of Health for approval. The last session of the Idaho legislature directed the environment division to involve the board "more directly" in preparing the list, he said. The board made no changes, approving the rankings as presented, he added.

The priorities list is drawn up according to an evaluation system approved by EPA, and Dake said he anticipates no problems with the agency. EPA received and commented on a tentative listing submitted a month ago, he said.

Rexburg is scheduled for a step two grant of $75,000 from EPA in October, 1978, and a step three grant of $600,000 in August, 1979. Gooding's application for an EPA grant of $45,000 is to come in October, 1978, and for a $450,000 step three grant in June, 1979.

The priorities list has scheduled Filer for a step three upgrade grant of $325,000 from EPA in February, 1978, and has scheduled Bruneau for a step two grant of $23,000 for a new facility in November, 1978.

Minidoka and Bliss are set to apply for an $8,000 planning grant each in October, 1978.

BOB STAKER, BURLEY
... shows signs of fall

Lucky men survive plunge over cliff

By SHANE O'NEIL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Bob Staker is home with a walking cast on his broken left ankle and an eight-inch gash that runs from his forehead to the back of his scalp.

He was a passenger in a mobile home that took a dive over a 200-foot cliff early last Sunday morning and despite his injuries, walked-and-crawled-out of the canyon to get help for a friend still trapped in the wreckage.

Dean Dayley, Staker's companion who was driving the motor home that morning, expects to be released from Cassia Memorial hospital today, where he is being treated for multiple cuts and a broken shoulder. Both men are from Burley.

"I was pretty determined," Staker said Wednesday. "I was scared for Dean. I knew he was hurt way worse than I was."

From his hospital bed, Dayley said, "All I could do was hope Bob made it."

The motor home went off the cliff along the Snake River four miles east of Burley at a point where there is a heavy overhang. Staker said he knew they could not be seen from the road and would not be spotted unless by hunters in a boat or someone from the north side of the river.

The two men had gone for a drive of about 20 miles, circling Burley as Dayley demonstrated his new motor home. They approached State 81 from the south about 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

"I think Dean went to sleep," Staker said. "I hollered, 'Dean, hit the brakes; that's a dead end.' That's the last words that was said."

Staker said he remembers starting over the cliff and the motor home hitting on its front end about 75 feet down the cliff before it flipped over, struck on its top rear and bounced to land on its wheels and roll through 300 feet of large willows. It stopped near the river's edge.

Staker was thrown to the back of the motor home. He awoke about 4:20 a.m. and turned on the dome light.

Staker said Dayley was wedged under a broken table.

There was a lot of blood, but he was breathing all right," Staker recalled.

Staker found two blankets and wrapped them around Dayley. After Dayley became conscious, Staker said, he could hear the man saying, "I'm dying, I'm dying."

Staker told Dayley, "I don't know when, but I'll get out of here and get help."

Staker did not know his ankle was broken until he stepped out of the mobile home into the muck. "I knew something was wrong with my foot because every time I would step in the mud I would fall."

Staker first started to walk down river toward Burley, but had to stop after going about a quarter of a mile.

"I kept falling, and it was too dark," he said. "If I could have walked, I probably could have made it." Staker then returned to the motor home to wait for daylight. He left the motor home again about 7 a.m. when he "just could see."

Walking and crawling, he made his way through the mud for about a mile upstream toward Decle.

"It was cold lying down there," Staker said. "I knelt over in that mud, boy, and it was cold."

He used the overhanging branches to help pull his way through the mud along the river. Where the tree branches were back from the river, he worked his way up against the bank and made better time.

Staker said he found the place along the cliff where sagebrush replaced the heavier tree growth. "I really went up through that sagebrush on my hands and knees," he said.

today Motorcycle found

GOODING — What does up must come down.

What gets lost must be found.

Two years ago Claude Gooding told police someone had stolen his small 50 cc. motorcycle. He reported the theft May 3, 1975, valuing the bike at that time at about $200.

Police looked for the bike but couldn't find it. Thursday, more than two years after it was stolen, the bike was found.

Idaho brand inspector Kim Barnett spotted the bike in the Little Wood River while checking cattle at the Gooding Livestock Commission.

Barnett and a Gooding police officer dragged the bike from the water, and Scanlon identified it.

Will it run?

"I don't think it will," a Gooding officer said. "It was under water."

Today the bike was still lying beside the river. Scanlon was due to retrieve tonight.

Deputies wait for body

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Sheriff's deputies are keeping watch for the body of a drowned man at the screen protecting the Upper Salmon Falls power plant from debris in the inlet canal.

An eyewitness told sheriff's deputies she saw Floyd Miller, 57, Jerome, lose his balance and fall into the inlet canal upstream from the power plant Monday afternoon while fishing.

Dragging efforts in the swift canal have failed to recover Miller's body, but Sheriff Paul Corder said today Miller's fishing pole had been found about 30 feet downstream from where Miller reportedly fell in the water. Corder said the pole was pulled up by drag hooks Thursday.

Corder said this morning, "Hopefully, the body will show up there (at the screen) today or tomorrow."

"We'll watch for it until it shows up there," he added. "It's got to show up somewhere, because it can't get out of that canal."

The power plant is about six miles south of Hagerman on the Snake River.

Health group meets

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Meeting for the first time since 1973, the Idaho Health Association is trying to regain its former prominence as a catalyst in health legislation and education.

Several members attending the conference in Sun Valley, said the organization began to fall apart as state health officials tried to assimilate members and programs under a state comprehensive plan. Before then, the group had more than 500 members.

Pat Carr, Boise, who was elected president of the faltering organization in 1974, said she worked to keep it intact because the HIA is the only health group of its kind in Idaho "that has no control from vested interests."

Mrs. Carr said the intent of the group is to serve as a forum for all the diverse elements which comprise the health-care system trying to define commonalities.

Sex case causes probe into school hiring practices

By CHRIS BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The sex discrimination grievance lodged this summer against the Blaine County school district has led to a department of civil rights investigation into the district's hiring practices.

The investigation is a result of complaints filed with the Idaho Human Rights Commission and the Department of Civil Rights by a woman who was turned down for the principal's job at Wood River High School earlier this year.

Barbara Dargatz, a guidance counselor at the high school, has charged the school district with sex discrimination in its hiring policies.

Last week, the district provided the department of civil rights with information concerning its hiring procedures. This is the first step in an investigation to determine if the complaint bears any merit, according to Patricia Yates, acting branch chief of the department of civil rights in Seattle.

Yates said the next step will be to study the information and by the end of October, determine if an on-site investigation is warranted.

The acting branch chief said on-site investigations are not unusual in civil rights investigations. An investigator would visit the school district to interview persons involved in the complaint and to examine hiring policies.

However, Rudy Liverite, coordinator of Equal Opportunity Services with the Idaho Department of Education, indicated such on-site investigations were rare in Idaho. He knew of only three serious discrimination complaints in Idaho school districts over the past three or four years.

"It's not a routine thing at all," Liverite stated. "... I think it may be more common in other states than it is in Idaho."

After its investigation, the department of civil rights will issue a letter of finding, according to Yates. If the department determines there has been discrimination in the district's hiring policies, the district will be expected to comply voluntarily to insure it doesn't happen again, or the district can appeal the findings.

The ultimate leverage to insure compliance seems to be that Washington could cut off federal funding to a school district where civil rights violations occurred and wilfully continued.

If the department determines no discrimination has occurred, the matter will be ended, according to Yates.

BLM report avoids decision

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management has issued its Environmental Assessment Record (EAR) but has delayed making a decision on whether to allow a proposed water diversion and pipeline across BLM land in scenic Box Canyon.

The BLM has also postponed a decision on whether to hold public meetings on the matter until it can gauge the intensity of public response.

"If there is any strong controversy over it, we probably will have a meeting," explained BLM Shoshone district environmental coordinator Terry Costello.

The EAR surveys the BLM's options concerning a proposed exchange of easements on land in Box Canyon.

The proposal before the BLM is to allow Earl Hardy, a commercial trout raiser, an easement across BLM land in the canyon so he can construct a water diversion and pipeline. In exchange for an easement, BLM would gain the use of a portion of Hardy's land in the upper section of the canyon as a natural study area.

According to supporters of the proposed easement swap, the public would benefit from the exchange in two ways.

First, the local economy would be stimulated by the construction of a trout hatchery that the granting of the easement would make possible.

Hardy says he plans to build a hatchery which could eventually produce seven to eight million pounds (dressed weight) of trout per year, worth $12 million to $14 million. The hatchery would also create 300-400 jobs in production and processing, Hardy estimates.

Second, the Idaho scientific community would benefit from the use of a pristine natural area for study purposes.

It is doubtful that the canyon would ever be opened to the general public on an unlimited basis because such use would jeopardize the values which make the area valuable as a study area.

The negative effect of the exchange would be to endanger the native trout population in the canyon below the proposed diversion by reducing the stream flow, and it would eliminate the clear water pool where the stream enters the Snake River.

The Fish and Game Department said it would consider 100 cubic feet per second flow in the stream, an absolute minimum to maintain the fish population in the stream and fishing and waterfowl resting habitat in the Snake River.

Hardy plans to allow only 16 cubic feet per second to bypass his diversion, but maintains that a clear water pool would still exist, only slightly upstream where the water would re-enter the river after passing through his raceways.

The BLM will gather public comment on the proposal for the next 60 days. Copies of the EAR are available from the Shoshone BLM office.

Farm group seeks members

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Farmers in Magic Valley and all across the nation are joining a drive for new membership in the National Farmers Organization sparked by an "emergency situation" in U.S. agriculture due to sagging farm commodity prices.

"We feel the situation in agriculture is very critical," according to Owen Les Staley, national president of NFO. "We believe everything must be done to unite U.S. farmers."

Staley's statement, like the shot heard 'round the world, is reverberating in Magic Valley as NFO members are working to boost membership under revised rules which allow farmers to join for shorter periods of time.

Magic Valley farmers are out looking for others to join NFO. Steve Goodwin, Hazelton, national director for NFO in Idaho says,

In addition, Goodwin said about one of every 10 Magic Valley merchants has purchased $75 NFO support certificates.

Until this year, the NFO required new members to join the organization for a minimum of three years, to insure stability for the group.

Now farmers can join the group for one year, only and there is even a provision for local merchants who are feeling the pinch of a smarting farm economy to lend their support to the NFO movement and thereby bolster commodity prices.

Until now, only farmers who actually had farm production each year could join NFO, but Staley says in this emergency situation as thousands of farmers find themselves on the brink of financial disaster, rural merchants have begun wondering how they could help.

"Businessmen with high accounts receivable" began wondering how to help farmers organize to get better prices for their commodities and thus pay off their debts, according to Staley.

The result has been the certificate of support" which is sold to an average of 35 to 40 per cent of rural merchants who businesses depend upon farmers, according to Staley.

Money donated by merchants, members and other sources is being used to strengthen the NFO's nationwide collective bargaining organization.

Staley says, "For years, the NFO has urged farmers to organize, pool their crops and market them in an orderly fashion to get the best possible prices by collectively bargaining with buyers."

NFO seeks members under 'emergency'

"Right now we're moving a lot of edible beans out of your area," Staley says. "And we're doing it at a very good price. We're working on all commodities. We have a good cattle program and a good grain program."

"We're not satisfied, but we're pleased," he adds.

When asked if farmers could be more effective in controlling the prices they get for farm produce if they organized into one single group, Staley said one farm organization would be a good idea, but "it would be pretty hard."

"Each of the groups performs a little different function," he explains.

"The Grange is social and legislative. The Farmers Union is more political and legislative and the Farm Bureau is more insurance oriented. Our main interest is commodities."

In addition, Staley says, no two groups can, legally collaborate, plan or conspire together on economic issues.

Burley men survive plunge

When he finally reached the top, two vehicles passed Staker by as he tried to hail for help. The first was a pickup headed toward Declo.

"He slowed down, almost to a stop," Staker said. "Then he got a good look at me and really goosed it."

Another vehicle came by, it, too, slowed down, but sped on after the driver got a good look at Staker.

He decided he would have to walk to a nearby farm house to get help, but before he had gone far, a truck driven by Hop McGraw, a Burley farmer, came along and Staker halted him. McGraw stopped to help the injured man.

Mrs. McGraw was following in a pickup and the men told her to notify the sheriff's department and get an ambulance for Dayley.

Staker had McGraw drive to where the motor home went over the cliff and shouted to Dayley that help was on its way. Dayley shouted back, so they knew he was still conscious. Staker refused to go to a hospital, but had McGraw take him to his home so he could have his bachelor roommate, Bill Butcher, drive him back to the scene.

"I guess I was a little rummy," Staker said. "I should have gone to the hospital then, but I thought I should go back there because Dean was alone."

As soon as Staker returned to the accident scene, ambulance attendants took him to the hospital. Dayley was later removed by boat.

Charge cuts calls

MIAMI (UPI) — A newly imposed 15-cent charge for directory assistance in three Florida counties has sent a lot more fingers thumbing through the yellow and white pages, a Southern Bell official said Tuesday.

Directory assistance calls in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties have dropped 50 per cent since Sept. 20, when customers began paying the fee after six free requests for listings, according to Southern Bell spokesman Jerry McLaughlin.

A similar reduction could be expected statewide, he said, and that means the plan is working.

McLaughlin said without the directory assistance charge, basic monthly bills would be 50 cents higher.

The reduction in directory assistance calls has allowed Southern Bell to reduce the number of operators on duty. McLaughlin said, but none will be laid off.

Some will be reassigned, he said, and others will leave through normal attrition.

Steelhead season holds heady success prospects

SALMON — A rapidly falling hours-per-fish ratio has Fish and Game Department officials here predicting the best steelhead season in many years in this area.

It's already pretty hot on the main Salmon below the city of Salmon.

On opening weekend (Oct. 1), fishermen checked were averaging 40 hours per fish, according to Al Reingold, F&G fisheries biologist stationed in Salmon.

By the following weekend, the time factor had plummeted to 40 hours per fish. Wednesday during a spot check of fishermen along the main Salmon, almost every angler questioned either had a fish in possession or had caught and released one, Reingold exclaimed.

Livening up the picture for anglers is the chance to catch a real junker.

Not only are there more fish in the river this year, but, Reingold added, "We have a few three-ocean, Clearwater fish returning to the Palismeral River."

The Clearwater strain of steelhead has historically produced the largest steelhead in Idaho. Several years ago the F&G began releasing fish from this strain in the Palismeral. A three-ocean fish is one that spends three years in the ocean before returning to spawn.

Already, one Clearwater fish weighing in at 20 pounds has been taken in the North Fork area.

In addition, Reingold said most of the fish checked appeared to be heavier bodied than usual and in excellent condition.

Reingold said the main body of fish stalled at the mouth of the Snake River in early September because of high water temperatures. Then a rainy spell dropped the temperatures and the fish began to move up.

But another hot spell stopped their progress and divided the fish into two main groups.

For the last two weeks, though, all the fish have been moving, and Reingold expects the main body of the run to reach Salmon "any time."

The third week in October has traditionally seen the best steelhead fishing in the Salmon area.

Monday the bag limit increases to two steelhead, the possession limit to two, and the season limit to six.

Graff spoils public image of money-grubbing pro athlete

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In these days when players can demand and receive huge salaries, long contracts and no-trade clauses, a pro athlete like Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Neil Graff is an anachronism in his own time.

Asked to come back, without guarantees, to bail out the team that had fired him just a few weeks earlier, Graff simply said "yes."

"I didn't feel vindictive at all," Graff said of the Steelers' 11-hour request for him to return after Terry Bradshaw and Mike Kruczek were injured in last Sunday's game with Houston. "I had good feelings about the organization when I was here. I understand the situation that led to my being cut."

His understanding came from experience. Graff had been signed and cut by three other NFL teams before the Steelers signed him five games into the 1976 season, when Bradshaw was injured, leaving the rookie Kruczek and only healthy quarterback. Graff dressed for nine regular season and two playoff games but his services were never needed.

When he reported to training camp, Graff found he had competition for the third-string quarterback job: rookie free agent Cliff Stoudt. Graff's training camp was considered more impressive than Stoudt's, but the 22-year-old Stoudt had more years for potential improvement than Graff, 27. Stoudt was placed on the taxi squad and Graff was released.

But with Bradshaw questionable with a broken right arm and Kruczek probably out for the season with a shoulder separation, Graff's age and years spent as a benchwarmer became attractive.

Knowing that, Graff said, he probably would have called the Steelers and offered his services if they hadn't contacted him first.

Coach Chuck Noll has said that if Bradshaw cannot play with a flexible cast on his wrist in the Steelers' upcoming game with Cincinnati next Monday night, Graff is likely to be the starter with Stoudt the backup.

"There's no guarantee, but I would guess I'd play," Graff said.

"It's really a great chance for me, if I get in and play," he added. "It's a big game, not only because it's a Monday night television game, but because it's against the Bengals (an AFC Central Division rival)."

"It's a good opportunity to show what I can do, to show what kind of talents I have."

Denver faces up to 18-year oddity, important game against Oakland

RECORD DRIVE OFF EIFFEL TOWER OF 400 YARDS ... is set by Arnold Palmer who paid to have traffic detoured

Bavasi wooed by California as possible trouble shooter

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Gene Autry hopes to hire E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi for a front office job with the California Angels next season, but not to replace General Manager Harry Dalton, the Angels' owner said Thursday.

"I met with Buzzie for lunch and had a talk with him," Autry said in an interview. "We were discussing ... that maybe he could come in with us and help us straighten out a few things."

"I think maybe we will get together and he'll be with the organization next season."

Autry insisted that Dalton, whose contract extends through the 1979 season, "will remain as general manager."

He said Bavasi, former general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers who resigned last month as president of the San Diego Padres, is a "very good friend" of Dalton and he foresaw no difficulty with the two baseball executives working together.

"Harry knew I was going to talk to Buzzie," he added.

He indicated a final decision to hire Bavasi and determination of his duties with the Angels would probably be made a few days after the World Series.

Autry said he has also been a friend of Bavasi's for a long time and disclosed he wanted to hire him several years ago. When he heard that Bavasi was leaving the Padres after an argument with owner Ray Kroc's wife, he thought again "that I would like to have him with the Angels."

After a decision is made on Bavasi, Autry added, the Angels will decide whether to give Dave Garcia a full year's contract as manager and, if not, whom to hire to replace him.

"Garcia is the only candidate right now," he explained. "If the decision is made not to hire Garcia, then we would look for other candidates."

The Angels fired manager Norm Sherry last July and hired Garcia, a coach with the team, to finish out the season.

Despite signing three expensive free agents last year, the Angels had a disappointing season and ended up in fifth place in the American League West, 28 games behind Kansas City, with a 74-88 record.

Bradshaw unhampered in drills

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback Terry Bradshaw, wearing a half-cast on his broken left wrist, practiced Thursday without noticeable problems for the game with Cincinnati next Monday night, but team officials still listed Bradshaw as doubtful starter for the contest.

A Steelers spokesman said coaches and physicians agreed to wait overnight to see if Bradshaw suffered any swelling or new pain following his first workout since he broke the wrist against Houston last Sunday.

If Bradshaw cannot play, the Steelers likely will go either with rookie Cliff Stoudt or Neil Graff, who was reacquired this week after being cut in training camp. Bradshaw's usual backup, Mike Kruczek, separated his right shoulder in the Houston game and is out indefinitely.

The Bengals also have injury problems that may cause them to play Pittsburgh without running back Archie Griffin and safety Marvin Cobb.

Bengals Coach Bill Johnson said the status of Griffin, with a broken right wrist, was "questionable" but he expects him to be available. Johnson said Cobb's neck injury makes him "doubtful" this week.

Griffin, who hasn't played in a regular season game since his 1975, said his arm felt better than he expected since his layoff after being cut by Pittsburgh during preseason drills. He would be backed by rookie Cliff Stoudt, a free agent from Youngstown State.

The Steelers have also listed Dennis "Dirt" Winston, Frank Lewis and Ernie Pough as questionable for the Cincinnati game, but running back Reggie Harrison, originally listed as questionable with a knee injury, was designated Thursday as probable.

Cincinnati's strong safety Tommy Casanova, who has been out with a knee injury, has returned to participating in team practices this week and is expected to be in the starting lineup.

By GREG AIELLO
UPI Sports Writer

The Denver Broncos, who have yet to win any kind of championship in their 18-year history, aren't used to all this attention. Important games are not part of the Broncos' tradition.

That's what makes this week special. The surprising Broncos, unbeaten in four games, will the also-unbeaten Oakland Raiders to unravel their first-place tie in the AFC West. There were so many reporters and TV crews in Denver Thursday that Coach Red Miller decided to bar the news media from practices the rest of the week.

"You couldn't turn around without somebody sticking a camera in your face," Miller said. "It's just bound to hurt our concentration."

The game marks the beginning of a crucial five-game stretch for Denver, which faces Cincinnati, Oakland again, Pittsburgh and San Diego following Sunday's game.

"This stretch can make us or break us," Miller said. "Of course, we'd like to win all the games, but for now our chief concern is this Sunday and how to stop Oakland's big offense."

Miller should be familiar with the clues to solving the Raiders. He was the offensive coordinator last year for the New England Patriots, the last team to beat Oakland. The Raiders have won 17 straight games. An Oakland victory Sunday would tie the NFL record of 18 straight victories shared by the Chicago Bears (1933-34 and 1941-42) and the Miami Dolphins (1972-73).

Denver ranks second in total defense in the AFC and first against the rush in the entire NFL. The Broncos have yielded only 26 points in four games, fewest in the AFC, but haven't faced anything like Oakland's explosive offense keyed by quarterback Ken Stahler. Miller has been most successful, however, in reviving an offense that was feeble last year. The rejuvenation of veteran Craig Morton, obtained in a trade with the New York Giants, is primarily responsible. Morton has completed 56 per cent of his passes to rank as the AFC's third-leading passer.

"They have a lot of fine athletes and quite a few of them have been playing together now for a number of years," Oakland Coach John Madden said. "So it shouldn't come as any surprise why they are playing as well as they are."

Cornerback Steve Foley (leg), tight end Riley Odoms (leg) and linebacker Joe Rizzo (shoulder) are probable for Denver. Oakland safety Jack Tatum is questionable due to a groin injury.

In other games Sunday, Atlanta is at Buffalo, Baltimore at Kansas City, Chicago at Minnesota, Cleveland at Houston, Green Bay at Detroit, New England at San Diego, New Orleans at Los Angeles, the New York Jets at Miami, St. Louis at Philadelphia, San Francisco at the New York Giants, Tampa Bay at Seattle and Washington, D.C. at Dallas.

Pittsburgh hosts Cincinnati Monday night.

Pat Haden will start for Los Angeles against New Orleans in place of Joe Namath, who injured his left knee in the Rams' loss to Chicago last Monday night. The Saints are winless in eight tries in Los Angeles.

Tampa Bay has a good chance to break its 18-game losing streak against Seattle. Tampa Bay's young defense has allowed only 55 points and drawn praises around the league. But the offense still hasn't scored a touchdown this season.

Washington will try to keep Dallas from retaining the NFC's only unbeaten club.

Griffin may play with broken rib

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A broken rib may not stop Cincinnati Bengals running back Archie Griffin from seeing action Monday night against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The two-time Heisman Trophy winner still was listed as "doubtful" Thursday for the important game in Pittsburgh, but the Bengals reported Griffin has been fitted with a fiberglass halter to protect the injury. If Griffin is unable to play, veteran Lenell Elliott will take his place.

Besides the undetermined situation at running back, Cincinnati head coach Bill

Johnson had other things on his mind Thursday as he put his squad through practice. Johnson said he hadn't made up his mind whether to start rookie Wilson Whitley or 13-year veteran Walter Johnson at a defensive tackle slot.

Whitley, a first-round draft choice for the Bengals, has started through most of the preseason and regular season, playing alongside fellow rookie "first-round" draft pick Eddie Edwards.

But coach Johnson indicated he wasn't sure about whether to start the rookie pair at tackle against the Steelers experienced offensive line.

Staggering Vandals face Montana test

MOSCOW, Idaho — The University of Idaho football team, still searching for its first win of the season, hosts the University of Montana Saturday, Oct. 15, in a 1:30 p.m. homecoming game at Kibbie-Archie Dome.

Idaho enters the game with a 0-4 season record following an upsetting 34-14 loss to Idaho State University last Saturday. Meanwhile, Montana enters the game with a 1-3 overall record after losing to Boise State, 43-17, last weekend.

Both teams will not only be fighting to come up with a victory, but trying to earn possession of the Little Brown Stein, a trophy symbol of the rivalry between the interstate teams.

It's been a season of disappointments for the Vandals thus far. Picked in the preseason to be a contender for the Big Sky title, the Idaho team is 0-2 in conference play and has to win their remaining conference games and hope the other clubs in the conference come up with two defeats also — a remote possibility at best — for an outside chance at the title.

The loss to the Bengals from Idaho State last weekend — a team Idaho was favored to defeat — not only dashed the Vandals' hopes for a conference title, but dealt a serious blow to team morale.

"The ball game with Idaho State probably hurt us as much as any loss that we've had in the last four years," Vandal head coach Ed Trokel said.

"I really feel that our kids were ready to play. I think all we needed was to get on the scoreboard first. Had we done just that on our first possession, instead of coming up with an interception in the end zone, then I think we could have rallied and the score would've probably been in reverse of what it was.

"We just had too many turnovers and our kids were in a state of shock. They really played that way until the end of the fourth quarter, but by then it was too late."

Turnovers spelled doom for the Vandals as they fumbled seven times, losing four of them, and were intercepted three times.

The Bengals capitalized on several of the miscues via scores. Greg Langford stole the ball from Idaho quarterback Craig Junntunen and ran 68 yards for ISU's first touchdown.

In the third quarter, leading 17-0, ISU scored again when it recovered a fumbled punt in Idaho's end zone.

And so it went. Now the task at hand is to regroup and face the threat of the Grizzlies.

Montana enters the game averaging 347.8 yards per game in total offense while allowing their opponents 394.4 yards.

The leading ball carrier for the Grizzlies has been Monty Bullerick, a 5-10, 180-pound junior from Anaheim, Calif. Bullerick has 420 yards on 83 carries and two touchdowns to his credit.

Grant Kieckhefer (6-0, 195, Jr. from Great Falls, Minn.) is the team's second leading rusher with 194 yards on 35 carries and two touchdowns.

Tim Kerr (5-10, 175, Jr. from Missoula) is the leading passer with 19 completions on 42 attempts, for 233 yards. He has been intercepted three times this season.

In the receiving category, Vern Kelly (6-0, 170, Jr. from Los Angeles), leads the team with 24 receptions for 278 yards and one touchdown.

Montana's record isn't any indication of how they have played this season. In the season opener, the Grizzlies lost to Nevada-Las Vegas, 15-13, and then followed with a one point loss to Northern Arizona the next week, 25-24.

Their lone win has come over Portland State by a score of 40-25. Weber State then set the Grizzlies back with a 31-23 win.

For Idaho, Robert Taylor and Tim Lappano rank one-two respectively in rushing for the season. Taylor has 231 yards on 46 carries and one touchdown, while Lappano has 178 yards on 30 carries.

Taylor currently ranks 15th on the Idaho career rushing list with 569 total yards, while Lappano is 11th with 1,012 yards.

Junntunen is the Vandals' leading passer with 43 completions in 74 attempts for 353 yards and two touchdowns.

Kirk Allen leads the club in receiving with 184 yards on 15 catches.

As a team, Idaho has been averaging 369.3 yards in total offense per game (233.3 rushing and 136 passing).

Steinbrenner hits TV control, umps

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the New York Yankees, said Thursday that baseball may be controlled too much by television and he dislikes the way umps are chosen for the World Series.

Steinbrenner, whose team is in Los Angeles for the next three games of the deadlocked World Series, made the comments during an interview with Barbara Walters for the ABC Evening News.

"Baseball is a game that may be getting controlled too much by television," Steinbrenner said. "They set the schedules rather than what might be best for the ballplayers and the ballplayers. We should have had more time between the playoffs and the World Series."

"We have put baseball in the position where we have literally nothing to say about who umps the playoffs," he said. "We put our best two teams against each other in the American and National League and yet the umps we are given are done on a relation basis where we come up from the playoffs and we don't have the best umpiring. If you're going to have the best teams, you should have your best umps."

Pistons shift forward

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons lost their second forward Thursday but got one back Friday.

The NBA club said Al Eberhard has a fracture of right ankle and will be out of action for about five weeks. Forward Don Adams was lost due to a ruptured Achilles tendon before training camp even began and forward Howard Porter reported with a case of pneumonia.

But, Marvin Barnes is due to return to the Pistons Friday after his release from prison.

Barnes leaves jail with boss at side, playbook in his head

CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI) — Detroit Pistons forward Marvin Barnes plans to quietly end nearly five months behind prison bars Friday, leaving with his general manager, his side and a new set of plays in his head.

"He wants no publicity," said Corrections Department spokeswoman Lillian McDaniel. "He will go out quietly."

Pistons' General Manager Bob Kautzman says he will meet Barnes outside the Adult Correctional Institution and whisk him immediately to Buffalo, N.Y., for a 3 p.m. news conference.

Barnes, who studied a playbook and passed a team physical while in prison, is expected to suit up for the Pistons' final exhibition season game against the Buffalo Braves Friday night.

He has avoided comment since he was jailed May 16 for a Michigan handgun arrest that violated the terms of a probationary sentence.

A Superior Court judge turned down a request to allow Barnes to teach basketball to ghetto youngsters in place of a jail term.

The three-year probation was imposed in 1974 when Barnes pleaded guilty to charges of assaulting Providence College teammate Larry Kettvirt with a tire iron.

Barnes, who turned 25 behind bars July 27, was transferred from maximum to minimum security midway through his term. His mother had complained to Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy that she was forced to pay $1,500 to an unknown extortionist who threatened to kill Barnes.

"I think he did a lot of soulsearching in prison and that his sense of values is much better at this time," said Joseph Galikin, chairman of the state parole board that voted to free Barnes after less than half of his one-year term.

The 50 days Barnes spent in the century-old maximum security prison, where conditions have been ruled unconstitutional by a federal judge, was "a real shocking experience" for him, Galikin said.

He said Barnes studied psychology and religion while in prison with the help of priests from the alma mater where he earned all-American basketball honors.

"It was really something the way those priests came out to work with him two or three times a week," Galikin said.

Pruitt may miss first road game

BEREA, Ohio (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns face their first road game of the year Sunday at Houston with the possibility ace halfback Greg Pruitt, a Houston native, will not be able to play.

Pruitt has suffered from ankle sprains, most recently re-injured in last Sunday's 26-10 loss to Oakland, and at mid-week coach Forrest Gregg said he simply didn't know whether Pruitt could perform.

"If he can, fine," Gregg said. "If he can't, somebody will take over."

That means Larry Pooles, a third-year man from Kent State University where he scored 38 touchdowns, including 18 his senior year, and set school records with 599 carries for 2,785 yards and a 4.6-yard average.

Pooles has seen limited action this season after rushing for 336 yards as a part-timer last year. He has carried 16 times for 40 yards and has caught three passes for 25 yards, scoring one touchdown on a 12-yard run.

"I've got to be ready at all times, and when Greg was hurt I knew I had to go in and do a job as close to what he was doing as I could," Pooles said early this season.

Gooding man heads agents' association

... association head

GOODING — Edward Koester, Gooding, was installed as president of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents, earlier this month at Hartford, Conn. The installation was at the conclusion of the 62nd annual meeting of the Association. Over 1,600 were registered at the event.
Koester is county extension agent at Gooding, where he has served as staff chairman since 1952. He has served in several capacities within the National County Agricultural Agents Association. In 1973-1974 he was Western Regional Director. He was elected vice president in 1975 and became president-elect in 1976. As president of the 6,500 member organization he will preside at three national board meetings held during the year and at the 1978 annual meeting to be held in Boise. He will also attend national meetings of farm organizations, regional association meetings and annual meetings of the National Association of Extension Home Economists and National Association of Extension 4-H Agents Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Koester are the parents of Mrs. Valerie Quenell, Twin Falls, and Brian Koester, Springfield, Ill.

Corn price bewailed

SUNNYSIDE, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State Sen. Max Baer, R-Prosser, said corn farmers in the Yakima Valley and Columbia Basin are facing disastrous crop prices.
Baer said prices this season vary from $7-$14 a ton. That's less than half the 1976 prices of around $17 a ton in many cases.
Baer said partial blame for the depleted prices was errors in drought forecasts.

He said farmers were going to let their land lie idle until irrigated water forecasts were changed late in the summer.
By then, the only crop some farmers were able to plant was silage corn. Thus came the oversupply and depleted prices.

Onion production dips

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said onion production in the Idaho-East Oregon area is expected to total 5.9 million hundredweight in 1977.
Output at that level does not mark a change from the September forecast but is 5 percent below the 1973 production of 6.2 million hundredweight.
Yield per acre, at 485 cwt., is unchanged from the September estimate but is 55 sacks below the 1976 yield.

The final production estimate for storage-type onions was placed at 16.8 million cwt.

Record spud crop looms

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's 1977 potato crop is expected to hit a record 90.3 million hundredweight, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

At that production level, the harvest would top last year's production by two percent. The increased production is attributed to an increased yield which is pegged at 251 hundredweight or, seven hundredweight above last year's level and the second highest on record.
Harvested acreage at 360,000 is 3,000 acres below last year. Abnormal temperatures during part of the growing season caused stunting problems in some early fields. But uniform heavy stands and good seed were more than offsetting.
This resulted in higher yields than last year in many areas of the state outside the southwestern counties. Harvesting conditions generally have been favorable and digging has made good headway to date.

Production in the southwestern counties is estimated at 9.5 million hundredweight compared with 11.4 million last year. Yield per acre at 315 hundredweight is 10 hundredweight below 1976.
The harvest in the other counties is forecast at 80.8 million hundredweight, compared with 77.1 million in 1976. Yield per acre at 245 hundredweight is 10 hundredweight above a year ago.

Drought aid deadline extended

BOISE (UPI) — The director of the Department of Water Resources said the deadline for emergency drought livestock watering and domestic water hauling aid has been extended through Nov. 15.

"Despite the above average rainfall this summer, groundwater levels in many areas of the state are still low," said C. Stephen Altred. "Some shallow domestic wells and springs continue to be dry. This means hauling water for livestock and household use may extend through the fall and winter in some areas."

The emergency assistance program was begun in July and a Sept. 15 expiration date was set for filling assistance. The program is being extended because some livestock owners are still experiencing problems, Altred said.

The program, funded by the Bureau of Reclamation, initially provided some $480,000 for use in Idaho to combat some of the drought effects. Of that, $142,000 in cost-sharing grants was earmarked for assistance to drought-stricken livestock herds.

Japan offers new terms

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese sugar refiners have come up with a new proposal to settle the drawn-out price dispute with Australian sugar suppliers, industry sources reported Thursday.
The sources said the proposal was worked out at a meeting of presidents of 31 sugar refining firms involved in the dispute Thursday.
The presidents also reviewed the latest Australian offer and agreed that the Australian plan is "worth appreciation."

Details of the Japanese proposal were not available, but the sources said the Japanese leaders indicated the possibility of an early solution of the dispute.
The five-year contract, signed in 1975, calls for Japan to import 600,000 tons annually until 1980.

The Japanese plan calls for importing 450,000 tons annually for a four-year period starting next year at a fixed price while the remaining 150,000 tons will be priced at international market quotations, the sources said.
The dispute stemmed from a sharp decline in international prices of raw sugar after the signing of the contract in 1975.

L.M. Boyd

If Ola Manson had not changed his last name to Lindbergh when he first came to this country from Sweden, his grandson, the world's most famous flier, would have grown up as Charles Manson.

Our Love and War man is saddened to learn that the number of men living alone has climbed 60 per cent in the last seven years while the number of women living alone is up 35 per cent.

The only mention of "Lucifer" in the Bible was a reference to the King of Babylon, not to Satan. In fact, there's no biblical authority whatsoever to identify Satan as "Lucifer."

Salt is somewhat scarce in East Africa. That's why the Maasai tribesmen thereabouts drink cow's blood. There's salt in it. They mix it with milk. Incidentally, they bleed their cows routinely without butchering them.

WOMEN'S EYES

Was none other than Havelock Ellis who said the most noted feature of the female anatomy is the eyes. What he did not explain, though, is why. Marlene Dietrich, whose eyes have been noted worldwide, did explain it. She said, in effect, the only reason a man notices first a woman's eyes is that he wants to find out if they notice him. Believe she had that right. It has been claimed that nobody ever gazed any woman's eyes as beautiful except when those eyes gazed straight back at the observer.

The drinking cup of the early Danes was called a "rouse." To empty it was to "jar rouse." Which is where we get our word "carouse," says our Language man.

Motel managers report that item most often left behind in guest rooms now is the electric shaver cord.

Beavers, too, marry for life.

BOBBIES

Q. "Those London policemen referred to as bobbies never carry guns, right?"

A. Not right. About one out of every 20 is qualified to use handguns. And 80 of them on that force are rifle marksmen. Special officers assigned to guard VIPs usually pack pistols as do the constables who protect the embassies.

Q. "Wasn't there a time when Coca-Cola contained cocaine?"

A. Not in the last 74 years. In 1903, caffeine replaced the cocaine in that original recipe.

Q. "Settle an argument. Which country owns the Virgin Islands, the United States or Great Britain?"

A. Both. Each claims half.

Q. "Why did some Indian tribes require their children to be brought up by their uncles instead of their fathers?"

A. "Brought up" isn't exactly right. The uncles corrected the youngsters and disciplined them, leaving those fathers free to be friendly with their own kids. Less authoritative, more loving, as it were.

Relief of duty sought

BUILT — Sister RoseMary Hoessen, who founded the McHaley Home in Built, a foster home care center for girls, has asked the board of directors to replace her as program director Nov. 1 if possible.

Terry Lechner, chairman of the board of directors for the home, said Sister RoseMary will not be leaving; but rather will continue to live in the home and remain active in the center.

"She founded the center about three years ago with the help of a number of the rest of us and has been the major factor in operating it ever since," Lechner said. "She has asked us to relieve her of the major part of her duties Nov. 1, but will stay until we can find a replacement."

Lechner said the home is non-denominational and takes girls placed by state agencies as well as those placed by the parents.

"If we have a girl who needs our services and care, but would not benefit by becoming a ward of the state, we pay her way through our community donations," he said.

Capacity of the home is six girls. It is located in the former Catholic convent building adjacent to the Catholic church on Poplar Street in Built, and the building is donated rent free by the church.

In addition to foster home care for girls, the center also provides counseling and other assistance.

Lechner said the board of directors will meet Monday to discuss future plans as to selection of a program director. He said it has not been decided if trained parents or an individual program director will be hired.

121 Boats & Marine News 121 Boats & Marine News
